No Time to Eat

Pint-Sized Politician Invades Island

By JACK FRY
Colonist Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Timing of New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas' arrival on Vancouver Island yesterday was so critical 200 persons were halfway through their luncheon when the guest of honor walked into the CCF hall in Nanaimo.

The throng of NDP supporters rose in their places to give their leader a rousing round of applause, then sat down again to finish their meal.

Mr. Douglas didn't have time to eat. He was about to sink a fork into his portion of baked ham when he was called upon to give a speech.

The rush apparently was caused by the fact many had to get back to work. As it was, Mr. Douglas' 40-minute speech lasted until 1:10 p.m.

NOT A CHANCE

"I haven't had a chance to eat," said the pint-sized NDP leader, as he pulled back his chair at the head table and stood up on it.

"The Douglasses will do almost anything for a free meal including coming to Nanaimo, where they didn't get it," he continued.

Mr. Douglas said he has heard "marvellous reports" of the "fine campaign" the NDP is putting on in Esquimalt-Saanich but did not mention the NDP campaign in Victoria.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidate John Windsor was at the luncheon.

U.S. Denies Shelling Reds

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government charged Wednesday that United States Navy gunners lobbed four dummy shells last Friday at one of the dozens of Russian trawlers operating between the Grand Banks of Newfoundland and the Caribbean, endangering the vessel and its crew.

In Washington, the state department denied the Soviet charge and described it as "a baseless and unfounded accusation."

Two American cruisers and a destroyer fired on the Soviet refrigerator trawler OSIRIS 9007 on the high seas 70 miles east of Norfolk, Va., in an "act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences," a protest note to Washington declared.

DEMAND CITED

The note demanded punishment of the persons responsible and assurance that the purported incident won't happen again.

A statement issued by the state department after a day-long investigation said there was naval firing practice within the area east of Norfolk but that the nearest surface ship was 12 miles away.

WITHOUT FOUNDATION

The U.S. statement said "A thorough investigation has positively established that the Soviet protest of an alleged firing of a U.S. naval vessel on a Soviet trawler 70 miles east of Norfolk on March 8 is without foundation."

A spokesman for U.S. Atlantic fleet headquarters had said earlier that no U.S. cruisers were operating in the area.

Serum Flown to Boy

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. Coast Guard sent out a plane from Elizabeth City, N.C. Wednesday night carrying anti-rabies serum to the liner Queen Elizabeth to help a Canadian boy who was bitten by a dog several days ago in Alberta.

The dog died and authorities suspect it had rabies. The boy is Andrew McLeod, 4, son of Dr. H. R. McLeod of Killam, Alta., who moved to Canada two years ago from England.

Dr. McLeod said the bite "was very very small . . . and most unlikely to be rabies."

He explained the boy, two sisters and their mother were travelling to Southampton. In Edmonton, Dr. Stuart Smith, director of local health services for the Alberta health department, said officials only "suspect" the dog was rabid but want "nothing left to chance."

He disclosed the dog's body was sent to Lethbridge for a rabies test, and there is an "equal possibility it could be distemper."

A definite report will not be available for several days and, if it shows the dog did not have rabies, the Queen Elizabeth will be notified immediately so the painful inoculations can be halted.

Dr. David Price, U.S. deputy surgeon-general who got the call for help from Dr. Smith, said: "We were only too glad to help."

Grit Squad Hears

'Truth Hurts' John D Foes

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—With a Liberal "truth squad" listening intently, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night his Conservative government is getting the voters' support because it gives them "the whole truth."

In a vigorous speech to a crowd of 1,400, Mr. Diefenbaker rolled off reams of statistics on economic growth and on government measures to help the Atlantic area. "Give 'em hell, John!" shouted a man in the filled-to-capacity high school auditorium.

"I never do," the prime minister shot back with a smile. "I simply tell the truth and it sounds that way to the Grits."

He said that, all across Canada, people tell him they haven't been told about the government's accomplishments.

"I welcome those who desire the truth. For while the light holds forth to burn, the greatest sinners may return."

AIMED AT SQUAD

His words were obviously aimed at the three-member "truth squad" which made its first appearance, headed by Judy LaMarsh, Liberal MP for Niagara Falls.

He accused the Liberals of having followed a "rule or ruin" course in last year's election campaign.

Russia Unveils Five-Year Plan

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russia announced Wednesday it is drawing up a new five-year plan aimed at strengthening the nation's military and industrial might in the years 1968 to 1970.

Action for Farms Pearson Pledge

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP)—Prompt action seeking agreement with the provinces for national agricultural marketing boards was promised Wednesday night by Liberal leader Pearson.

Continuing his April 8 election campaign, Mr. Pearson told a political rally in this constituency of Joliette-Asbestos-Montreal that a Liberal government also "will sponsor the legislation necessary to help co-operatives and will provide loans and other encouragement for the efficient development of agricultural, marketing and supply co-operatives of all types."

NATIONAL STUDY

He also raised again the Liberal pledge of a national study in cooperation with the provinces to examine the partnership between French and English-speaking Canadians.

CAUSE HUM AT BACK

Mr. Pearson spoke to a high-school auditorium crowd of about 600 with a hum of conversation rising and falling among the 100 or so persons standing at the rear.

Ottawa Negro Barred

Color Bar Jumps 49th Parallel

OTTAWA (CP)—A Negro housewife has been barred by the U.S.-based headquarters of International Sweet Adelines, Inc., from singing with its Ottawa branch, local officials of the female barbershop singers said here.

A representative from the Tulsa, Okla., headquarters was reported to have said last weekend Mrs. Lana Clowes, a Negro singer, can no longer sing with the Ottawa group.

Jane Burns, president of the Ottawa Sweet Adelines branch, told reporters the group would be happy to retain Mrs. Clowes but the club must abide by the rules drawn up in the U.S.

Miss Burns, a school teacher, said the Sweet Adelines constitution states members must be "white girls of good moral character."

"I know this color bar goes against the Canadian Bill of Rights and the international group does believe in segregation," she said. "But I don't see the issue on Christian principles. I see it on the constitution."

Miss Burns said the club would not quit the 13,000-member international organization, but would "just have to wait until the Americans change their civil rights laws."

Executive members Mrs. Beverley Perkins and Mrs. Barbara Cowan, founder of the local group, said they would dissociate themselves from the club.

"I personally cannot go along with this," said Mrs. Perkins. "There is no reason why we should be forced to abide by that regulation up here."

She said Marion Brennan, ethics officer of the organization, visited Ottawa to inform members Mrs. Clowes must leave.

"She laid it on the line."

B.C. PROBE EXPLODES

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

A legislative committee probing serious accusations against the highways department erupted in a wild shouting melee last night over charges of stalling in obtaining an RCMP report.

The hearing became so unruly that at one point it had to be adjourned briefly so order could be restored and frayed tempers cooled off.

Seconds later the bitter controversy spilled out of the hearing chamber into an adjacent hallway, where members taunted each other and shouted furiously.

The storm drove a new wedge between government and opposition members of the 13-man committee.

It came when opposition members asked Chairman Irvine Corbett (SC-Yale) what had been done about a committee resolution passed on Tuesday morning.

RCMP REPORT

The resolution asked consent of the legislature for release of an RCMP report on a highway project to members of the committee, provided they read and discussed it in private.

Opposition dissatisfaction with the speed at which the resolution was being processed became apparent when the committee started its sitting at 7:30 last night.

Randolph Harding (NDP-Kaslo-Slocan) pointed out to Mr. Corbett he was to have presented the resolution for legislative approval.

"WASN'T DONE"

"It wasn't done yesterday and it wasn't done today and you should give a reason," he said. "There was no date set for the chairman to act on it," Mr. Corbett replied.

"There's been too much stalling in this matter already," Mr. Harding charged.

Up to the time the House rose at 8 p.m. yesterday the resolution had still not been presented.

INSTRUCTED

Mr. Strachan said the chairman had been instructed to present the resolution and he wanted to know why this hadn't been done.

"I've made a report . . .," Mr. Corbett started to reply.

"To whom?" stormed Mr. Strachan.

"I want to know why you have not done anything about it in two days."

When a government member of the committee said it was a "procedural problem," Liberal Leader Ray Perrault scoffed.

"NOT AT ALL"

"Oh, it's not a procedural problem at all," he said. "I am awaiting instructions," pleaded the chairman.

"You don't need any instructions," replied Mr. Strachan.

"I'm asking again, when are you going to present this resolution?" asked Mr. Harding.

Highway Contractor

All in Order —Engineer

By DON MATHESON

Engineer E. C. Webster, director of B.C. highways construction, said Wednesday he could find nothing out of order in a controversial highways contract.

He was testifying before the legislative hearing into highways department operations.

Mr. Webster told the committee he himself had changed the figures on one set of estimates because he had "personal knowledge" of the situation.

EXPLAINED

An apparent discrepancy of $100,000 in payments was explained by deliberately "conservative estimating" in early months of the project, he said.

Later, when the engineers in charge had time, they went back over the amount of material actually moved and there was a "pickup" of the low estimates.

RUMORS

Mr. Webster also admitted that there had been "rumors" about Project 819, which affidavits before the committee have charged received padded payments, throughout its progress.

The project was for 12 miles of Trans-Canada highway near Revelstoke, a joint federal-provincial undertaking.

CRITICIZED

"During the course of this project," he said, picking his words carefully, "the job was subject to quite a bit of criticism, rumors of favors being granted to contractors, and payments for work not performed."

A committee of federal and provincial highways officials that just "grew" checked the job in May, 1958, he said.

ANYTHING WRONG?

"Did you find anything out of order . . . anything wrong with the performance of the work?" asked committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

"No . . . federal authorities concurred with our classification," Mr. Webster replied.

Allegations of padding in the affidavits claimed one month's payments were $100,000 higher than the preceding and following ones.

NOT ENOUGH?

The allegations were, Mr. McKenzie said, that there wasn't sufficient machinery or a large enough payroll to do that amount of work in a month.

But Mr. Webster explained that engineers on the job had a standard practice of early estimating payments for underwork.

REESTIMATE

By the time the controversial payment No. 4 came along, the "resident engineer" would have his work laid out far enough ahead to permit him to make a rough re-estimation of quantities actually removed.

Also at that time there had been "tight money" and "as a general policy the department felt it should pay up contractors as far as it could," he said.

CLOSER

The larger payment was made on a "partial re-measurement" of the work that allowed the engineer to come closer to what work had actually been done, Mr. Webster testified.

On Estimate No. 5, two copies were entered as exhibits.

Mr. Webster said the engineer had been "conservative in this respect also," and he had personal knowledge of the situation, having inspected the project earlier.

He said he phoned the regional engineer and had him in

Witness' Life Menaced?

Dick Holzworth, key witness in the highways probe, said Wednesday he had been warned his life is in danger.

The warning, he said, came from Harvey Campbell, a B.C. contractor. He said Mr. Campbell told him "I thought you were supposed to be eliminated."

Mr. Campbell told reporters Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense." He said he had never warned Mr. Holzworth, a Montana contractor, of such a threat.

Mr. Holzworth said Mr. Campbell had warned him another person had said Holzworth would not appear before the committee.

He said Mr. Campbell also told him of a telephone call from Mrs. Campbell. A person, unidentified, had told her "we didn't get the job done but we're going to do it."

"It sounded like a threat," said Mr. Holzworth. "But I was not worried about it."

World In Brief

MOSCOW—Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-tung has invited Soviet Premier Khrushchev to Peking to try to settle the ideological rift the Russians say is "shaking the unity" of the Communist world. It was disclosed Wednesday. No date was set.

HAVANA—Some 2,000 Russian military specialists are packing and will leave Cuba during the weekend, responsible sources said. (See also Page 3.)

GENEVA—The U.S. Wednesday offered two major concessions in an attempt to break the nuclear test-ban deadlock, but Russia promptly rejected the move as an attempt to sabotage discussion with technical details.

STEINERBACH, West Germany—Anti-Gaullist leader Georges Bidault will seek permission to stay in Bavaria "for a limited period," a spokesman for the former French premier said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sand was the biggest problem for the 13 people who Sunday staged one of the most dramatic escapes under the Berlin wall, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The 13 crawled 60 yards through a tunnel 20 inches high that began from a one-family home without a cellar. It was owned by Neils A. 45, (full name withheld), who worked in West Berlin before the wall went up.

"We started building the tunnel under my porch where police could not see it," said Neils.

"Obviously we could not get rid of the sand because the Communists would have noticed it," Neils said.

"So we filled everything in the house with sand. We filled closets with sand, bureaus with sand, kitchen cupboards with sand."

"We built partitions in the rooms so we could pour in sand. We raised floors to put sand under them."

"At the end we had so much sand that before we made the breakthrough, we were sleeping three on a couch."

The Quibble Kids

THE DECISION of the Liberal Party to adopt the American electioneering technique of employing a three-man "truth squad" whose duty it will be to attend all the prime minister's political meetings and issue prepared comments denying the truth of everything he says "within minutes" of his speech, is not at all likely to sit well with the majority of Canadians.

Most Canadians are prepared to give any candidate a fair hearing during an election campaign and reserve for themselves the right to judge whether what he says is truthful and reasonable. If the speaker happens to be the leader of one of our national parties and tells a deliberate falsehood or attempts to mislead the public on any given subject, it has always been the prerogative of the other leaders to challenge him at the first opportunity.

It is, in fact, this nation-wide public debate between the leaders of the partisan forces which brings out and underlines the national issue at stake and clarifies for the electorate the positions taken by each of the political parties.

If the Liberal "Quibble Kids" stick to their plans of what amounts to nothing more than highly organized but delayed heckling, surely it will deny their leader, Mr. Lester Pearson, the opportunity of using to his own advantage the untruths he seems so certain the prime minister will utter.

Should this happen one cannot help but wonder what Mr. Pearson will find to talk about, so dedicated is he to the negative and carping approach to national affairs of the moment.

Whatever happens it will be interesting to watch how the "Quibblers" operate in order to issue their comments "within minutes" of the prime minister's remarks. To whom will they issue them? Will their statements be both in English and French? Will they take to the platform immediately the prime minister vacates it? Or will they stand at street corners after the meeting handing them out like pamphleteers?

If all they want is to call Mr. Diefenbaker a liar they might find it as effective and much simpler to boot just to play the role of honest hecklers and shout it at the top of their voices at the prime minister's future meetings.

A Serious Need

THE OUTRIGHT refusal of Health Minister Martin to tell the legislature how many children are on the waiting list for Woodlands School for Handicapped Children in New Westminster must appear to be an effort to conceal the gravity of the situation, even though the minister described the list as his greatest problem.

The Kinsmen Clubs of Vancouver Island in a recent brief to the government said that the figure was 107, and whether or not this total is correct, there is reason to believe that it includes only the most serious cases among many more afflicted with mental defects. At any rate, had the number been much fewer the minister surely would have been only too glad to say so.

Mr. Martin's indication that a consulting service for parents of retarded children will be established at Nanaimo to serve the central part of the Island and his reiteration of the promise of a mental health centre in the Victoria area are welcome but they can hardly be regarded as enough. For parents of the more sorrowfully malformed or retarded children the burden at home can be almost unbearable; if they succeed after long effort in getting the children into Woodlands and happen to live at a distance from that institution—in Victoria, for instance—they are faced with considerable travelling expense and protracted separation.

According to the Kinsmen Clubs, there are about 900 retarded children on Vancouver Island, and another 200 or so are being born each year. By no means all of these of course will demand institutional care.

But it is to be hoped that in expressing his intention to follow up the clubs' representations later "on a technical plane with officials of my department," Mr. Martin was paying more than lip service to their recommendation that a 450-bed centre for the retarded youngsters should be established quickly on Vancouver Island or alternatively that a survey be started to see what existing buildings could be converted for this purpose.

Written Off

PERHAPS it dilutes our political vanity that all four of the national party leaders should not automatically include Victoria in their campaigning. We like to believe the two federal seats of this area are important, and the opposition groups at least might well think that a victory in either the Victoria or the Esquimalt-Saanich constituency would be a feather in their caps.

Obviously the Liberals and the Socreds do, for their party chiefs will follow close on the heels of Mr. Diefenbaker, and each of these three meetings will probably bulge the halls chosen to house the large crowds expected.

The NDP leader however apparently does not intend to speak here and that will be a pity. Mr. Douglas is actually on the Island at the moment but to date no plans are announced that would see him on the platform before a local audience. This will disappoint many voters irrespective of party affiliation, for he is one of most able and entertaining speakers in the country.

The conclusion is inevitable that in bypassing this area Mr. Douglas considers the NDP to have small chance of victory here. Had the prospects been even slightly favorable it may be assumed he would have brought the weight of his oratory and personality in support of the two NDP candidates concerned. In effect he is giving up the Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich bids by default.

This must be disconcerting to the two NDP candidates in these ridings, who are left to play a lone hand without the intimate backing of their party leader. A shrewd politician of much experience, however, Mr. Douglas has probably appraised the local situation with some accuracy.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and scaling wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE genes of the blood royal are geographically far-flung. Mysterious too if one tries to trace the genealogy that includes among the Queen's ancestors such as Old King Coel and Mithradates of Babylon. We shan't do that today, however.

Instead we shall pin-point her consort, the prince we know as Philip, Duke of Edinburgh. He has stirred some of the genes alive.

This young man has a gift for arresting utterance, not entirely to be frowned upon for it reflects a characteristic none too commonly marked among others of his ilk. He has wit and ability to match his tongue.

You may not have noticed it but the other day, in Australia, in reply to a "real dinkum" youngster who asked him if he were a Greek, Philip said that while he was born in Greece he was not a Greek.

We know him as, before his marriage to the then Princess Elizabeth, a son of the Greek royal house, but genetically speaking he is correct. In a direct sense he is of Danish and German extraction. He is of the Danish dynasty that accepted the throne of Greece one hundred years ago.

When this denial of his birth-right reached Athens however the parliament there took decided umbrage. Somewhat paradoxically under the circumstances.

The Greek parliament, you see, was putting through a bill to sanction the enlistment in the Greek regular army of the king's cousin, Prince Michael. (He is Philip's cousin too.) The point of a heated debate was the reconfirmation that the Greek constitution frowns on titles of nobility or distinction. It is irregular even to permit the use of "prince" or "royal highness."

Not that the Greeks do not have a word for it, as the saying goes. They get round the bar by calling the crown prince "Diadoch" or heir.

This dislike of royal titles nevertheless did not prevent much hostile comment over Philip's frank rejoinder to an Australian boy. Putting it mildly Athens seems to have been furious. Nor were parliamentarians, appased when the Greek defence minister said it would be asking rather much for the Queen of Britain's consort to identify himself as anything but a Briton.

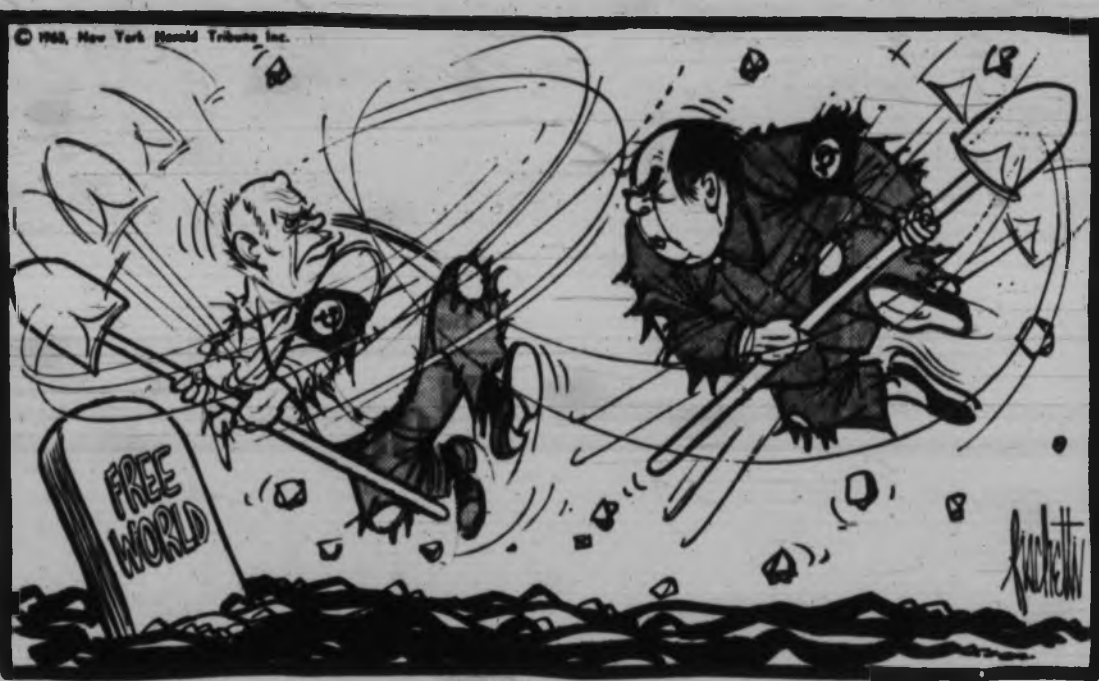

He is that by formal naturalization on the eve of his wedding, and via the ramifications of the blood royal about which we have hinted. These are wide and various. No more so than the genes to which you or I may lay claim, except that heraldic and genealogical experts have not through the centuries kept track of our inheritance with the same meticulous attention to detail.

Perhaps this is just as well, although it is cited as factual, even if a bit hazy, that by the imperceptible merging of offspring of royal houses with the commonality down the years whole populations are related to reigning families, and those that have stopped reigning.

Prince Philip is a cousin of his wife, a far distant cousin but they share the same great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, so this brings him back into the main stream of British royal history. There is British as well as Danish and German blood in him. Possibly too, I suppose, some Greek in addition, for the royal genes spanned the continents as well as the centuries.

The duke who caused the Athens flutter doubtless will shrug it all off, but there does seem some validity to the demand of one Grecian newspaper that if he is not a Greek he should remove the Greek flag from his coat-of-arms.

Even a prince can scarcely expect to have it both ways.

A Falling Out in the Burial Detail

Obsessed With Apartheid Details

By BERTHA SOLOMON from Johannesburg

THERE seems no end to the South African government's obsession with the small details of "apartheid."

The latest move is that Senator de Klerk, minister of education, arts and science, has told the country's top scientific and technical associations to expel their non-white members. He holds that scientific and professional bodies must follow government policy exactly, and not allow mixed membership. The non-whites must form their own associations. If the societies continue as at present, there may be an end to government grants and subsidies.

Since these societies have between them some 12,000 white members and a mere eight non-whites (though actually there are several hundred non-whites with scientific degrees in the country) and half of these eight are Chinese, it is a little difficult to see how these eight dispersed as they are over various associations, could form their own association.

The scientists, it is said, are extremely angry at this directive. It is also hinted that they may decide to reject the demand. If so, it will need special legislation to secure the removal of the eight non-whites, which could be a pretty complicated matter for the government.

It is this kind of petty, but logical - to the government - "apartheid" that occasionally irritates even some of the government's own supporters. And of course it is this kind of petty "apartheid" that makes the headlines overseas.

Whereas the government's efforts on the positive side of "apartheid" in building up the reserves towards self-government hardly rate a mention. Yet, in recent years those efforts have been real, creative, and sometimes even imaginative. Also they have cost the taxpayer (white) millions of rand and will cost many millions more.

The latest government plan announced, for instance, is to build 81,500 houses for Africans in African areas by 1966, at a cost of $155 million so.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Constitutional Act in Canada became law 172 years ago today—in 1791—dividing the country into Upper and Lower Canada. Each province had a Crown-appointed executive council. Lower Canada with no fewer than 15 members and Upper Canada no fewer than seven. Both had a legislative assembly of at least 30 members in Lower Canada and at least 16 in the upper province.

1839—The republic of Czechoslovakia was dissolved.

as to encourage border industries—border industries are the government's pet hobby horse.

And this is only part of the government's $210 million five-year plan for the development of African areas, which envisages more irrigation, more forestation, more soil conservation schemes, more money for fencing, etc. It is all very necessary work that must be done in these areas. The trouble is that all this good work is overshadowed and only too often discounted by the political aspects of "apartheid."

On the other hand the government sometimes asks for it by sheer ineptitude. Consider for example the affair of Waring. The minister for information, Mr. Frank Waring, adopted an unusual procedure. He summoned the press to a conference and briefed them on a bill which had not yet been published and which, he said at once, he had not seen.

It was, he told them, a Bantu Laws Amendment Bill which, among other things, would reduce racial friction and promote better understanding between black and white.

Accordingly, accepting his statement, most of the press went to town with headlines of this "new deal for Africans." But, alas, when the bill was published, a little later, for general information, it appeared it was anything but a new deal. On the contrary, according to the experts, the new bill is, to quote one paper "... the ultimate in Nationalist apartheid."

Naturally, the resultant uproar in the press over whether Mr. Waring took the press for a ride over the bill, or was himself taken for a ride by the department of Bantu administration, whose bill it is, was considerable.

Washington Calling

Time Is Running Out

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE government in Brazil got hold of some secret documents the other day that illustrate the depth of the split between the hard-line Chinese Communists and the followers of the Khrushchev line of co-existence. Throughout Latin America the split is developing into more or less open conflict.

The seized documents reveal a quarrel between hard-line leaders over funds believed sent from Havana for carrying out propaganda and subversion in Brazil's poverty-ridden northeast. The accusation was that somewhere along the way sticky fingers held back part of the money. As word of the documents got around, an emissary of the Moscow co-existence faction approached the government with a request for copies—they would be useful in blasting the enemy.

Cuba, as seen from Brazil, has quite a different look than the perspective from Washington. The blacks and the whites are not nearly so well defined. President Joao Goulart has told recent visitors of his concern that the United States by directly attacking Cuba might bring the quarrelling factions together and thereby put an end to the greatest hope since 1917 of permanently dividing the world Communist movement.

To see ourselves as others see us—or, more important, in the current struggle to see the world as it looks to others—is a difficult task as we become increasingly preoccupied with our own immediate troubles. This applies to all of Latin America and particularly to Brazil, which has just sent an important mission to Washington headed by Minister of Finance Francisco San Thiago Dantes.

This is not to suggest any real parallel between the economies of the two nations. Sao Paulo has industry as advanced as anywhere in the world, and Rio de Janeiro is a modern capital in every sense of the word.

But the desperate poverty in Brazil's northeast, where in some areas per capita income is no more than $50, bears a close resemblance to the problem of India with its average per capita income of $69.

In presenting his case for rescheduling $300,000,000 of loans and for further economic assistance to American and international loans and monetary agencies, Dantes is pointing to stern measures to curb inflation. These include a major tax reform, a cut in the federal budget of 35 per cent, eliminating subsidies on imported wheat and fuel and an effort to put some sense into the chaotic government-owned transport and communication system with a raise in rates.

Stringent efforts are being made to check the flight of capital. Since the plebiscite in January ending the political crisis and giving Goulart authority, Brazil's currency has strengthened.

In Brazil, as in most of Latin America, there is a growing skepticism over the Alliance for Progress. On a TV program in Rio the other day a speaker said:

"... The Alliance for Progress is dead, however much I should hope for its resurrection. The main reason for its failure seems to be the following. It was necessary to establish close co-ordination between help from the Alliance and basic reforms."

"But unfortunately the rich in Latin America talk too much about reform and label as Communists all those who would enforce it. This is easy to understand: The rich in Latin America go on holding 90 per cent of the land on the continent. Other things they control—parliament and have the intensity of their idealism and hope in the future gauged by the bank deposits kept in their names in the United States and in Europe."

These words were spoken not by a radical leftist but by Dom Helder Canana, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Rio. They underscore how very late the hour is. In Brazil, with its furious economic and political currents, time is rapidly running out.

The Packack

Pointed Contrast

By GREGORY CLARK

JUDGING by the amount of time on radio devoted to pop, rock and other tin pan alley types of music, the number of people interested in less rackety forms of music must be quite small. Those who are fond of symphonic, classical or merely melodious music have identified those few hours on certain stations devoted to good music, and otherwise rarely turn the radio on, except to pick up occasional newscasts.

Enquiring among my friends who belong to this group, I find that it is the absence of the human voice that most attracts them to the symphonic and concert hours. It is, they say, the human voice that is making radio so tiresome. Not only in numerous interpolated commercials, but in the vocal numbers of pop music, there is no escape from somebody yacking all day long.

What disturbs them lately is the fact that there has been a gradual increase of vocal music in these precious hours. Opera, oratorio, German lieder and other high-class yacking.

"Perhaps," I suggest to them, "the commercial interests of radio object to voiceless periods on the air. They offer too pointed a contrast."

Nuclear Arms

Irrelevant Terms

From The Winnipeg Tribune
LESTER B. Pearson is demanding the "immediate acceptance" of nuclear arms by Canada. Just what does he mean?

The words that have caused most of the confusion in the nuclear debate are "acquisition" and "acceptance." Neither word has any real relevance in the debate. Canada could not "acquire" or "accept" nuclear weapons from the United States no matter how willing or eager Ottawa might be to obtain them.

U.S. law forbids the transfer of atomic weapons to any foreign power short of war. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 expressly and sternly insisted that American ownership and control of nuclear arms be safeguarded. The law provided for the death penalty in cases of major violations.

The act was amended in 1954 to provide for greater co-operation between the U.S. and its allies through exchange of atomic energy information, and also provide for nuclear training for common defence purposes.

But the prohibition against transfer of custody and control of atomic warheads remained unchanged.

The 1954 amendment required the signing of bilateral agreements between the U.S. and any of its allies who wanted atomic information for mutual defence or training purposes. In 1955 an arrangement was entered into by Canada and the U.S. A further agreement was signed by Arnold Heeney on behalf of Canada and Douglas Dillon for the U.S. on May 5, 1959.

This undertaking provided for exchange of information and training for mutual defence purposes, but it expressly ruled out transfer of nuclear weapons. Here is Section 4, (B) of the agreement: "Under this agreement there will be no transfer by either party of atomic weapons or non-nuclear parts of atomic weapons."

Canadian personnel thus could receive information necessary for training in the use of atomic weapons but no "acceptance and acquisition" of nuclear weapons was possible. This applied to Canadian forces both here in Canada and in Europe.

As far as our NATO forces are concerned, it should be borne in mind that in December, 1957, the NATO council decided that a nuclear stockpile should be established so that weapons would be readily available for the defence of the alliance. Washington offered "to deploy nuclear warheads under United States custody in accordance with NATO defensive planning in an agreement with the nations directly concerned. In the event of hostilities, nuclear warheads would be released to the appropriate NATO Supreme Allied Commander for the employment by nuclear capable forces."

In the NATO countries, the nuclear storage bins are under American custody and control. The actual arrangements for the bins covering such things as land, buildings, fences, extra security guards, purely house-keeping arrangements are concluded with local military authorities of the country concerned. Since Canada has no territory in Europe, Canadian sovereignty is not involved and no such agreement is necessary.

As General Norstad said in his famous Ottawa press conference: "There is a NATO atomic stockpile... This was established by the heads of government in 1957... It is developed to meet the requirements of NATO forces under NATO plans, regardless of nationality or command affiliation or geographical location. So they would be able to service the Canadian squadrons on the same basis that, for instance, they can service American squadrons..."

"These weapons are held in the hands of the country of their source until they are actually used. But they can be made available as fast as a French squadron, to a Belgian squadron, to a Dutch squadron, to a German squadron, to a British squadron, or to a Canadian squadron, as they could to an American squadron."

All the agreements necessary for nuclear training and for transfer of weapons in an emergency have already been signed as far as Canada's NATO forces are concerned.

Talk of "guns without ammunition" and "commitments" and the need for further bilateral agreements and "acceptance" of nuclear weapons simply does not make sense. There can be no "acceptance" right up to the moment of the actual use of nuclear weapons on the outbreak of hostilities. Until then atomic weapons remain under U.S. control. If the emergency does arise, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Defence Minister Churchill have made it perfectly clear that Canada's forces in Europe will carry out any—that includes nuclear—role allotted to them by NATO.

In view of all this, the public has a right to know just what the Liberals mean by "immediate acceptance" of nuclear arms.

"They SAY Ben Casey is required study in Pre-Med."

Verwoerd's Tactics Boomerang

By JACK MACLAREN
from Johannesburg

Communist underground activity in South Africa is rapidly increasing to such an extent that it is beginning to give Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd's fanatical Afrikaner Nationalist Government a ready excuse to clamp down on what it terms "all subversive political elements."

For the past 14 years, the South African Government has been imprisoning, intimidating and generally silencing Negro nationalists whose only aim has been to break apartheid. The authorities have always blandly announced that they have brought to book yet another batch of Communists.

Dr. Verwoerd's habit of condemning most of his opponents as secret Red agents resulted in most thinking people taking his Communist claims with a proverbial pinch of salt.

But what the South African premier forgot was that this farcical inquisition would give the true Communists just the chance they needed to secure a hold on the country's Negro masses. They moved in, in fact, while the secret police were interrogating the wrong people and the courts were sentencing them to jail, exile or banishment.

In recent months, the Communist movement in South Africa has intensified its activities to alarming proportions. As each week goes by, more evidence accumulates on the infiltration and undermining of South Africa's black nationalist associations by underground political workers with definite sympathies for the Kremlin.

In the vanguard of the fight against South Africa's Afrikaner government is the anti-apartheid movement in London. Many of its supporters do not appear to be aware of the systematic grip that certain Communists have obtained on this organization.

The management of the anti-apartheid movement is, for obvious reasons, shrouded in secrecy. Only a few executive members are known in circles outside the secret meetings where the movement plots its plans to overthrow apartheid in South Africa.

Chairman of the movement is Mrs. Barbara Castle, an ultra-leftist Labor Party member of the British House of Commons. There is also no doubt about the secretary, Rosalynne Ainslie, a member of the South African Congress of Democrats as well as the British Communist Party.

Two other senior members are well-known South African Communists, Dr. Y. M. Dadoo and Mr. Sam Kahn. Both these men live in exile in Britain and are regular visitors to Moscow. They are also close associates of the British Communist Party's vice-chairman, Mr. Radjan Palme Dutt.

Another active collaborator in the organization is a Swaziland Negro, Mr. Francis Mbelu, a trained chemist who was stopped by Western secret agents some time ago when he tried to enter South Africa with a blueprint for a revolutionary army.

He was allowed to return to London, where he is now under close watch.

Mr. Dennis Buckle, a Ghanaian, occupies an important post in the anti-apartheid movement. He is a London representative of the Russian news agency, Tass.

Another acknowledged Communist is a South African Indian, Mr. Vella Pillay, who is a regular delegate to Communist peace congresses. He works as a special Communist courier in the movement.

All these people keep in close touch with Communist cells in South Africa. Their aim is to disrupt as many true Negro political organizations as they can in order to break down the black man's traditional opposition to communism.

There is every reason to believe that most of South Africa's underground political groups are now in the grip of Communist or extreme left influences.

Should this trend continue much longer, there is every possibility that the West may have to reverse its anti-South African policies by helping Dr. Verwoerd uncover Africa's growing nests of Red agents.

This, in itself, could present another major international problem. By helping South Africa, the major Western powers would have to prove to the strong Afro-Asian bloc that they are not condoning apartheid.

Kenya-Somalia Relations Worsen

Oil Hopes Complicate Issue

By DOUG MARSHALL

Sometimes governments act as though they would assert a territorial claim on hell if there was a chance of finding oil there.

Kenya's northern frontier district, centre of the smouldering dispute between Britain and Somalia, is not quite hell. But its 127,000 square miles of sun-blasted volcanic rock and scrubland hardly seems worth fighting for.

With the Somalia National Assembly on the verge of severing diplomatic relations with Britain, the British colonial office is left like a blind man in a bomb dump. A move in any direction may set the whole thing off.

Observers in Nairobi say oil is one of the factors commanding discreet attention by the interested parties. A large British oil firm has sunk considerable sums of money into prospecting sites throughout the wasteland.

Oil in commercial quantities would bolster Kenya's sagging economy and restore the former allegiance that began to disappear with the land redevelopment scheme. Somalia, barely surviving on its banana exports, is also dazzled by the prospect of petroleum.

The other factors in the sit-

uation—religious conflict and super-sensitive nationalism—are equally difficult to solve with diplomatic grace.

Causes of the dispute go back to the free-for-all scramble for Africa in the 19th century. The ebb and flow of European claims left Britain ruling a district that is geographically and culturally part of Somaliland rather than Kenya.

The majority of the 130,000 nomadic tribesmen in the disputed area want union with Somalia or at least continuation of the British administration pending a peaceful settlement. A minority swear they will fight to the death to stay part of Kenya.

A British boundary commission, led by Canada's Maj.-Gen. M. P. Bogert and a Nigerian lawyer, reported last October that the division for and against secession corresponded to the division between Moslem and non-Moslem tribes.

Kenya's two African nationalist parties have threatened war with Somalia if Britain allows the northern territory to secede when Kenya's independence comes. They are backed by predominantly-Christian Ethiopia.

Britain was prepared for trouble after Colonial Secretary Duncan Sandys announced that the northern district would become a separate region of Kenya. This was the boundary commission's recommendation.

The foreign office has assured Somalia that she will have a say in the settlement of the dispute and that consultation would also take place with Kenya and Ethiopia.

Britain's main hope in quelling a Congolese outbreak is that the contentious parties will agree to sit down and discuss the problem while it's still capable of being discussed.

Journalistic Thaw Sets In

JOHN CROSBY

In Britain, there seems to be a journalistic thaw toward the Russians.

The tenth anniversary of the death of Stalin has provoked a rash of articles about life in Russia and the tone of the articles is not only friendly but domestic and human.

It's as if the Russians were members of the same species and had the same problems and the same instincts and needs as our warmongering imperialists.

For instance, the New Statesman has in article called The Soviet Daily Lot, by Jacquetta Hawkes, which is frankly about Russian life from the woman's point of view.

Miss Hawkes opens by blasting the Archbishop of Canterbury for having deplored the "atheistical air" of Moscow.

"I believe that church membership and attendance are below our level," she writes, "but as far as morality is concerned, Russians of the kind we met (they included no politicians and few officials) appear to be less selfish and greedy than we are, genuinely devoted to the public good, and still unflinching in their sense of purpose and in their confidence in their chosen values."

"The people of the USSR are very much like our nation 100 years ago. They have those virtues that used to be ours, together with the priggishness, the intolerance and excessive national pride that went with them."

"What struck me as droll was that a people identified with scientific materialism should be so successful in keeping to spiritual values, so exceedingly bad in providing themselves in material well-being."

And then Mrs. Hawkes really scolds the Soviets for their lousy bathrooms, their bad housekeeping, their terrible beauty parlors. It's a whole new area of attack—to praise their spirituality and attack their amenities.

Meanwhile, the Sunday Observer carries a full-page article, Russia After Stalin, by Edward Crankshaw, which is even more deeply human and perceptive.

"One of the things the stranger to Russia in bad times (i.e. under Stalin) found it almost impossible to believe was that the extraordinary, deeply touching vitality which lay behind the asgraw faces of those ceaselessly shifting crowds in their drab and hideous garments."

"One face, a hopeless-seeming face, was presented to the outer world; but in families and small groups behind closed doors, the cocoon of defensive apathy was instantly shed and the private enjoyments that these people, often hungry, supposed to be regimented to the point of being brainwashed, created for themselves out of nothing were of such richness and unquenchable, such human warmth that one was plunged immediately into the wonderfully reckless free and inquiring inner life that made its first impact on an incredulous and fascinated West through the great 19th century novelists."

"Nothing was said about Stalin and his administration. . . . But everything was said about everything else with a freedom and flexibility of experiment which made Western domestic society seem thin, shop-sold, and hypocritical."

"So much so that when friends would ask me on returning to England from Russia, whether it was not like coming out of prison, I would reply: 'Politically, yes. But humanly, it is like coming back into prison.'"

The kind of sympathy to Russians (and Crankshaw is violently anti-Communist and even more violently anti-Stalinist) would not have been written and certainly not published in newspapers, even such liberal ones as the Observer five years ago.

Khrushchev has been credited with liberalizing Russia, but he's liberalized Western thought, too, on the subject of Russia and the Russians.

Incredible Authority of McNamara

Contract Exceeds Five Billion Dollars

By RICHARD WILSON
From Washington

Secretary of Defence Robert Strange McNamara, in a single decision, has authorized a single military project which exceeds the cost of the entire federal government in the crisis-laden first year of the New Deal.

McNamara has awarded to General Dynamics Corp. contracts for construction of what is called TFX, a supersonic tactical aircraft for use by all military services.

The full amount of this contract is at least $5,455,500,000. That's 5½ billion dollars. It is so large that, according to testimony before a congressional committee, a $77,000,000 mistake in the estimates has not yet been run down.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, the big spender of his time, could not spend as much as this single contract in 1933 on all the operations of the federal government. When Roosevelt got the New Deal fully tuned up total annual government expenditures were little more than this gargantuan single military project of 1963.

Such is the incredible authority exercised now by the former president of the Ford Motor Co. who is secretary of defence.

Losing Bid on Project $100,000,000 LOWER

His action was not alone a military decision. It is to have extensive economic effects: its impact will be as great as or greater than any New Deal program ever conceived to combat the great depression of the 1930s.

Now it can be seen what Dwight Eisenhower had in mind when, upon leaving the presidency, he said: "We must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist. We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes."

The TFX contract involves precise aspects of the question raised by former President Eisenhower. And that is whether or not the secretary of defence has used his authority wisely and impartially.

McNamara's judgment has been called to account. According to the record made before the McClellan Subcommittee of the Senate, General Dynamics Corp. was awarded the contract though it submitted a bid $100,000,000 higher than that of the Boeing Co. aircraft manufacturer.

Evidence is in the record of the McClellan subcommittee that a Pentagon evaluation board rated the General Dynamics plane inferior to the Boeing plane in most respects. On the basis of cost and performance, Boeing was picked at every important level below the Secretary of Defence.

Yet McNamara decided to overrule the admirals and generals below him and award the contract to General Dynamics. He did so on the basis of his technical knowledge of large industrial operations which led him to think that the Boeing estimates were unrealistic.

The evidence taken by the McClellan subcommittee was not from officials of the companies pushing their rival claims to the huge contract. This evidence came from the military technical experts who devote their careers to these specific problems.

Behind this controversy are questions which everyone in these circles talks about privately, but few publicly: What were all the influences bearing on McNamara's decision? Was the location of the main General Dynamics operation in Texas a factor in awarding the contract? And, as Senator Case of New Jersey asked on the Senate floor, "Is national interest the sole criterion in awarding government contracts?"

Case added that awards must be on merit and that politics, influence or any other extraneous interest must be ruled out.

Those who travelled about the country in the last congressional election could not escape the unpleasant conclusion that politicians think, rightly or wrongly, that political influence may be a factor in awarding military contracts.

This impression was strong-

Chinese Starving -Doctors

By EDWARD NEILAN
From Hong Kong

Physicians and surgeons who have fled to this colony from Communist China in recent months report that half of their patients suffered from malnutrition.

From the western mainland there are even reports of entire villages wiped out by illnesses stemming from a deficiency of vitamins and protein.

The testimony of these doctors contradicts reports from some Western visitors who have been official guests of Red Chinese authorities.

The Chinese doctors say that through the summer of 1962, the number of people suffering, directly or indirectly, from malnutrition jumped sharply. Hepatitis, edema, beriberi, septicemia and other illnesses linked with undernourishment have become more and more common.

The visitors to Red China who see no cases of malnutrition usually are taken through urban areas in the northeast—Shanghai, Peking and Tientsin—where the food situation is least desperate.

Trade with Britain

When your business editor, whose columns I have enjoyed for many years, wrote on views of Canada in The Times of London he missed a point or two. He overlooked the fact that a big slice of the people of Britain have been pretty peeved with Canada during the last few years, largely on the matter of trade.

It will be remembered that Mr. Diefenbaker promised, when campaigning in the last election, but one, that he would have 15 per cent of trade with the U.S. transferred to the U.K. And he received a tremendous number of votes here on that promise. Instead of carrying out that promise J.D.'s government placed restrictions on British imports into Canada. Then, when it appeared that Great Britain was on the verge of entering the ECM, our PM went to London calling for the continuance of preferential treatment for Canadian goods entering the British market.

The latest British Board of Trade report, covering the period in question, announced that U.K.'s exports to Canada had been reduced by 15 per cent and that that was attributed, almost entirely, to the above mentioned restrictions placed on imports from Britain by the Diefenbaker government.

Briefs Heard

Access Problems Blamed on Law

Major difficulties in affording public access to private roads result from existing legislation, a forestry leader said Wednesday.

Minor amendments to four acts would solve the problems, Ian Barclay of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. told a special legislative committee.

Mr. Barclay's remarks were fully endorsed by the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., said president Bert Hoffmeister.

ISLAND FIRMS AGREE

Two companies logging on the island who have access problems—Tahsis Co. Ltd. and Elk River Timber Co. Ltd.—agreed.

Don Ellis of Elk River Timber said that his company would open roads leading to Buttle Lake, Strathcona Park "and beyond" in non-operating hours and non-hazardous periods if the four amendments were made.

Mr. Barclay said that his firm wanted to open its main roads to the public.

COSTS HIT OWNER

But "existing legislation has the effect of seriously jeopardizing the status of private roads and of imposing costly responsibilities on the private road owner or licensee," he said.

Minor amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act, the Motor Fuel Tax Act, the Forest Act and the Industrial Transportation Act would resolve the situation.

Mr. Hoffmeister said the industry felt draft legislation for an access act, drawn up since similar committee hearings last year, "goes far beyond" five principles recommended to the legislature last March.

FARM ROADS MISSED

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston commented that "in all justice, the framers of the draft legislation did not consider the problem of farm roads and trails" after hearing a brief from Charles Walls, of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

It was now under advisement, he added.

Ed. Meade, secretary of the B.C. Federation of fish and game clubs, said the draft legislation did not but should cover a private road used by a farmer or resident for his own purposes, if the road was

'Second Look' At Duties

Premier Bennett's government has apparently taken one of its "second looks" at plans in the death duties field.

New legislation was entered in the legislature Wednesday amending the Succession Duty Act proposed earlier in the session.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the changes will "ensure" that no one will be more heavily assessed by B.C.'s entry into the field than when the federal government was collecting the tax alone.

Boiling Oil For Smokers?

Health Minister Martin, with tongue in his cheek in the legislature Wednesday, suggested boiling oil might be a good punishment for smoking.

In old Persia, he said, the penalty was pouring oil down a person's throat and "I think that is an excellent punishment—a punishment to fit the crime."

But Mr. Martin, who regretfully quit smoking some time ago for health reasons, admitted the shah eventually started smoking and abolished the punishment.

Wayward Children Get 'Homes'

Broader government care of delinquent children—including plans to place some in foster homes—was promised in new legislation.

Welfare Minister Wesley Black introduced a bill covering "Training Schools for Children" in the legislature Wednesday.

It repeals earlier Industrial Schools acts and revises operation of Brannen Lake School for boys and Willingdon School for girls, which become "training schools."

'Easier to Live With' Law For Motor Vehicle Owners

Sweeping amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act—designed to make it "easier to live with"—were introduced in the legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Bonner.

The legislation, some 46 changes, directs, in part:

• Two seat belts in the front seat of every car manufactured after the end of the year and sold in B.C.

• An end to the use of sirens by ambulances, but continuing with use of flashing lights.

• Removal of the necessity for a driver charged with speeding to prove that he was not driving at an "unlawful rate of speed."

• That in situations where, under existing law, a vehicle can be impounded after major accidents, the licence plates can be seized instead.

• The addition of driving without due care and attention and certain accidents caused by following too close be included in cases calling for mandatory suspension of drivers' licences.

Mr. Bonner made the "live with" comment outside the House. The legislation will come into effect June 1.

TOO INCONVENIENT

He explained that the "former system of impounding was just too inconvenient to be justified... It was embarrassing in the case of tourists' cars too."

Seizing plates would mean less expense for drivers involved and for the authorities too.

Ambulances are removed from the definition of "emergency vehicle" by the siren amendment, but flashing lights are permitted.

DOCTORS' REQUEST

The decision followed requests from the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"It is apparently more important to get the patient to hospital undisturbed and a blasting siren adds to patients' shock," the college believes, Mr. Bonner said.

"Speed is apparently not as important as it was thought to be," he added.

Highways Probe Explodes

"Don't you point your finger at me," Mr. Corbett said, rising from his seat.

"I'll point my finger at you if I like," shouted Mr. Strachan. "Then I'll point my finger at you," the chairman shouted back.

Other members all but drowned out the exchange with cries of "obstruction" and "order."

"We're not going to have this resolution torpedoed by you," cried Mr. Perrault.

A bewildered court reporter wrote furiously, trying to get the proceedings into the record.

COOLING-OFF

Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) stayed off possible disintegration of the hearing when he moved a five-minute adjournment.

No sooner had some members of the committee left the Victoria courthouse hearing chamber than they were arguing in the hall.

Bitter words were exchanged between Tom Bate (SC—Vancouver Point Grey), a government member of the committee, and Cedric Cox (NDP—Burnaby) a non-member who had been watching the proceedings.

LONG REMARK

Mr. Cox made a remark which was lost in the melee of words and Mr. Bate stalked up to him and asked him three times to repeat it.

But Mr. Cox refused. Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt), another spectator at the hearing, moved into bitter exchange on Mr. Bate's side.

Elsewhere in the corridor, party officials were trying to herd their members into separate rooms to discuss the new development.

Temperatures cooled visibly when the hearing resumed a few minutes later, and so had relations between government and opposition factions.

Mr. Corbett explained that in placing his report on the resolution before the committee for approval, he was only following normal procedure.

He was supported by deputy legislative clerk Ian Horne, procedural adviser to the committee.

ONLY WAY

"I am not aware of any communication with the House done in any other manner than by report," he said.

"Why didn't you bring this in yesterday?" asked Leo Nimsick (NDP—Cranbrook).

Mr. Corbett said he couldn't because of other business. "It's my hope you are not retreating into some legalism," Mr. Perrault said.

"I resent that," the chairman shot back.

SIMPLE. "It's a very simple resolution," continued the Liberal leader.

The committee then moved to receive the chairman's report and Mr. Corbett read it. It consisted of a procedural document simply stating that the committee asked leave of the legislature to receive the RCMP report in camera.

SOON AS POSSIBLE. Mr. Corbett promised committee members he would "present it as soon as possible."

"You are under instructions from this committee," Mr. Strachan warned.

A motion to send the report to the House today set off a new wave of objections from Mr. Strachan.

"I disagree with this whole procedure," he said.

Mr. Bate tried to kill the motion at one point—when there was hesitancy in seconding it.

"It's not seconded! It's all finished!" he shouted.

But the motion passed.

PROJECT 819. The report centres around Trans-Canada Highway Project 819, the job which sparked the committee probe when Montana contractor Dick Holzworth said the highways department paid $135,000 for work which was never performed.

Trustee Vote. Colwood Item. A trustee will be selected for a three-year term during the annual meeting of the Colwood Fire Protection District ratepayers in the Colwood fire hall at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The trusteeship now is held by C. H. Ritley, whose term expires the same day. A financial statement and annual report will be presented.

'Child Hiroshima' Test in Court. HAMBURG, Germany (UPI)—An important court test case to decide whether the sleeping drug thalidomide caused deformities to unborn babies opened Wednesday.

A lawyer called the drug damage the "children's Hiroshima." The case was the first of a series of suits filed by 3,000 West German parents of deformed children against a company that manufactured the drug.

New People Found in New Guinea. PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (Reuters)—A group of people previously unknown to the outside world has been discovered in a remote area of Australian New Guinea, it was announced here Wednesday.

An Australian administration spokesman said there were about 100 of them, known as the Ghom people, and they lived in a remote area between two mountain ranges.

Britain sold 3,000,000,000 cars, trucks and tractors to 190 markets between 1945 and 1962.

Controversial Contract Found in Order investigate the job with another engineer, then was telephoned back and changed the estimate.

A second estimate was then prepared, with the new figures typed in.

(Lymburner was one-time president of L. and M. Logging Co., which was taken over by another company before finishing the job.)

One showed a figure for 31,400 yards of rock raised to 58,400, with 57,500 yards of other material reduced to 30,500.

ASKED FOR

Mr. Webster said he had changed the figures himself, was sufficient money left in a "retention fund" held by the department from Mr. Burton Lymburner who asked for an assessment of the classification of materials.

"He was not happy with percentage of rock" allowed by the resident engineer, it was stated.

Montana contractor Richard Holzworth, whose affidavits sparked the hearings, headed the takeover company, Union Contractors.

BEFORE TAKEOVER

He charged Tuesday L. and M. had "gulled" the contract by doing the most profitable work before Union took over.

But Mr. Webster, under questioning, said he felt there changed the figures himself, was sufficient money left in a "retention fund" held by the department from Mr. Burton Lymburner who asked for an

Indians Afraid To Use Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Indians now enjoy the same federal voting privileges as all other Canadians, whether they live on or off the reservation.

It's another question whether Indians will exercise their rights on April 8.

FEARED FOR RIGHTS

In the June 18, 1962, general election an estimated 60,000 Indians were eligible to vote for the first time federally. But some were skeptical of the newly acquired franchise, suspecting mistakenly that if they used it they would be denied their treaty rights.

Several Indian bands in Quebec, Ontario and Alberta passed resolutions saying they wanted no part of the new right to vote. As a result, no enumeration of voters was carried out on those reservations and no polling stations were set up there. However, voting lists were compiled from names provided by the federal Indian affairs branch and polls were located close by so that any Indian who wanted to vote could do so.

No figures are available on how many actually voted.

WARDS OF GOVERNMENT. Until the 1962 election, Indians living on reservations were considered wards of the government and with certain exceptions—were denied the franchise. Canada's total Indian population is approximately 180,000.

Canada's other group of native citizens, the Eskimos, have enjoyed federal voting privileges since the 1953 election.

World Music Coming

The annual International House Concert from UBC in Vancouver will be staged at Central Junior High School Saturday at 8 p.m., sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Various national items will be performed by artists who are natives of the countries concerned.

ISRAELI GROUP

Jes Bara who, with at least 15 others, forms the Israeli group, was born and raised in Israel. This group offers live dances and fire songs.

There are also authentic dances from the West Indies and the Philippine Islands as well as rhythmic gymnastics from Scandinavia.

Miss Megumi Nara and Hidemaru Umemoto represent Japan.

INCLUDE CALYPSO

Singer Carol Clouston handles Canadian numbers which include a calypso, an Indian lullaby and items from Greece and South Africa.

The West Indies are also represented by a number entitled Drumology and there is an international students play, If Men Would Play Cards As Women Do, directed by Vancouver's John Emerson. The program will be opened by the Rotary Boys' Choir.

Nude Animal Drive 'Stunt' For Record

NEW YORK (AP)—The Society for Indecency to Naked Animals is shaping up for a stunt to promote the sale of a new record.

The society reaped publicity last week when its pickets circled the White House with placards asking President Kennedy's wife to clothe her horse.

Time magazine has discovered the SINA leader, G. Clifford Prout, Jr., is a writer for the Garry Moore television show and a just-released record inside SINA is narrated by vice-president Bruce Spencer.

Schools Drama Festival Expands

Pupils' Morality Play Near-Perfect

By BERT BINNY

The schools drama festival has been increasing in size, vigor and scope daily since it started.

There were three plays Monday and four Tuesday. Yesterday there were six.

This program forced afternoon and evening sessions with the matinee performances starting at 2 p.m. at Oaklands School.

MORALITY PLAY

There was some expression of surprise that an elementary school such as Oaklands should have attempted an old morality play such as Everyman.

But they did and the surprise lies in the accomplishment. The very young cast achieved an expression of quiet, simple dignity—so much in keeping with the subject—that could be envied by older groups.

NEVER STATIC

The setting, lighting, costumes and use of color were all excellent. The play was never static; movement was smooth and fluent; the timing, particularly in one or two cases, was perfect.

"It was excellent," said adjudicator Verlie Cooter. "The hand of a fine director (Tony Burton) was very evident and preparation has been thorough. The cast displayed both interest and energy."

MANY FINE

Gordon Lindquist as Everyman came in for special commendation though there were many fine minor performances.

Craigflower Elementary School presented scenes from The Tindler Box and, said Mrs. Cooter, "handled an adult script very well."

"The pace was a bit too even," added the adjudicator, "but the setting was in fine taste."

EARNED PRAISE

Janet Ross as the witch carried a long, arduous part confidently and her business and timing earned praise.

"As Peter," said Mrs. Cooter, "Bill MacLeod managed his part well and the two cats, Jennifer Margison and Pam Padgett, were always right in the play even when they were not principally concerned in the action."

BOLD ATTACK

An all-girl cast from St. Margaret's School presented Act V from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream, boldly and effectively attacking such male parts as those of Bottom (Katherine Alexi), Quince (Carolyn Jones), Snout (Marilyn Watson) and all the other "clowns."

Everything that could be done for characterization they did with energy and enthusiasm.

Loose Cyanide River of Death

TURIN, Italy (UPI)—Police said 75 gallons of deadly potassium cyanide escaped from a factory into the River Dora, killing tens of thousands of fish and severely affecting vegetation along the shores. There have been no reports of human fatalities.

MIDDLEBROUGH, England —Magistrate F. D. Graham of juvenile court fined a 16-year-old boy £3 for buying alcoholic drinks, then cut it to £2 when he learned the boy is married and soon to become a father.

Marilyn Watson, as Wall, was full of delightful comedy but the other strange characters were also outstanding.

STAGE DEPTH

Sometimes, in one or two of the plays, it seemed dictation had been somewhat overemphasized but the size of the auditorium or the depth of the stage often affect this aspect of acting and what would appear as faulty in one place would be suitable in another.

Activities moved to Mount View High School in the evening for three Senior High School plays.

Here the standard of playing and production continued at a very high level. The program went from power to power.

OUT OF A HAT?

"If the standard remains as high as it has been up to now," said Mrs. Cooter, "I'll almost have to decide winners by pulling names out of a hat."

Mount View's The Call Before the Hearse had "a handsome cast," noted the adjudicator. "Some more movement was needed and there is plenty of opportunity to create this legitimately in this play."

GALLIC FLAVOR

David Talbot as Pierre Plum and Carolyn Speakman as Jeanne Lallier were praised for capturing the Gallic flavor so necessary in this production. Oak Bay's Harlequinade followed, and of this the adjudicator said: "I don't think any cast in this age group could have done it better."

The whole production kept the large audience laughing from start to finish.

LAST PLAY

Mount View's second senior entry, The Door, ended a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

"They brought it off despite a hesitant start," noted Mrs. Cooter. "It is a difficult play and it is delightful to see it come off successfully. It very seldom does."

This evening the festival goes to Lansdowne Junior High School with curtain time at 8 o'clock.

THREE MORE

Three more plays are on the bill, opening with The Wonder

Hat by Lansdowne Junior High. Following this is St. Margaret's School, with Act I of High Ground, and proceedings wind up with a second entry by Victoria High School, A Ghost of a Chance.

Country Home—and Profit, Too

A two-bedroom house which had to be moved to make way for a new subdivision changed hands three times, each time at a profit, then travelled many miles before reaching its new site, it was learned Wednesday.

The house, at 1159 Lockley Road, was purchased from Arthur Beech for $6,000 by Esquimalt to make way for Lugin Place, an 18-lot subdivision, opening up to the rear of the dwelling.

Mr. Beech made an additional $200 by selling the house a second time to Edward Laird, an employee of H & D Taylor, housemovers, and they took over the job of moving the house to a new site near the corner of Mitchosin and Rocky Point Roads.

Birthday Fete

Patricias Honor Lady Patricia

Officers and men of 1st Battalion PPCLI at Work Point will honor the birthday of their colonel-in-chief, Lady Patricia Ramsay, with a parade and special activities on Monday.

Major General C. B. Ware, commandant of Royal Military College, Kingston, will inspect a battalion parade at 10:30 a.m.

Highlight of the day is a series of "broom-throw" games starting at 2 p.m. Sixteen officers' messes. Among invited guests are Lieutenant off brooms for possession of a Governor Pearkes and retired basketball on a mud-soaked RCMP official C. E. Rivett-field. The game can best be described as a combination of soccer, hockey, rugby and wrestling.

A special birthday dinner will be held Sunday night in the officers' mess. Among invited guests are Lieutenant off brooms for possession of a Governor Pearkes and retired basketball on a mud-soaked RCMP official C. E. Rivett-field. Ken Watson's

CURLING

It should be considered a breach of the criminal code for a skip to insist on using his own two precious granites to let fly at a house full of enemy stones. This is the time and place for him to remember that he has been granted the last stones of his team as a secret trust rather than as a divine right.

By tradition, a skip has been a draw man de luxe and the greater his name on the record books the oftener he has demonstrated his ability to find the four-foot ring when necessity demands.

With today's fresh crop of youthful skips in provincial as well as the Canadian curling limelight, there is a growing tendency to avoid the quieter, subtler shots even when simple common sense and mathematical probability dictate no other course.

Granted that winning strategy today demands a more aggressive striking game to be played by the lead, second and third, yet when the skip persists in his suicidal use of his own stones when a bad-looking end shapes up then it is time for his mates to say: 'Whoa! Control your impulses! What about a draw!'

An excellent example of defensive thinking of this kind was perpetrated by both skips in a televised clash between the Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island champions. Playing the seventh end, the score was 6-3 in favor of P.E.I. George Giannou, of Newfy skip, had last rock and lay four shots when young Art Burke, the P.E.I. prey, played his last stone. (See diagram.)

With all stones back of the tee-line, Burke tried to hit No. 1 and roll in front of Nos. 2 and 3. He hooked his return shot a little wide and slid by. Newfoundland drew for 5 points. A well-placed draw or freeze to No. 1 or No. 2 could well have saved the end for the P.E.I. lads.

As luck would have it, Giannou returned the favor on the next end when he tried to kill an opposing rock and missed. In this case, a good draw to the four-foot circle might have avoided the big four that was racked up against him.

Both skips were thinking in terms of cutting down the opposition score instead of protecting their own lead or increasing it.

Art Burke tries quiet take-out and roll on No. 1 with his last shot—hooks in turn wide and misses. Giannou draws for five. Score 6-3 in favor of P.E.I. at this juncture.

THE PALMER METHOD

USE THE HANDY 9-IRON IN CERTAIN SHOTS

Why force a 100-yard shot to the green with a wedge and risk hitting off line? A full 9-iron will carry that distance easily.

As shown in illustration #1, with a 9-iron, use a slightly open stance and position the ball midway between your feet.

It's also possible to hit a controlled 9-iron from distances shorter than 100 yards, especially when you want to be sure to hit over trouble between you and the green. To cut down a 9-iron's distance, then, open the stance more (see illustration #2). This automatically shortens the backswing.

You can also cut down a 9-iron's distance by choking on your grip (see illustration #3). Take your normal 9-iron stance (slightly open), then move your hands about two inches down the leather.

But for average golfers, a more open stance is usually better than a choked grip.

BANANAS ARE IMPORTED for the same reasons that LEMON HART RUMS ARE IMPORTED

Bananas are not native to Canada... and neither are rums. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in the Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two in year out. Then, meticulously blended and bottled it's finally shipped to Canada... smooth, mellow, delicious... a perfect product of that small area of the world that is famous for distinguished rum.

Detroit Rink Shocks Richardson Quartet

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Four Detroit curlers who grew up in Canada shot into the lead Wednesday in the international curling championships here, upsetting Canada 7-6 and defeating Scotland 5-7 in their first two matches.

The Canadian champions, skipped by Ernie Richardson of Regina, who has won this title three times in the past—came back in their second game to trample Sweden 22-4 and grab a share of second place with Scotland. The Scots defeated Sweden 15-4 in their opening match.

The United States, Canada, Scotland and Sweden make up the competition in the double round-robin tournament in which each rink meets each of its rivals twice. Canada has won the championships every year since it was started in 1959.

The U.S. victory over Richardson ended the Regina skip's winning streak of 16 consecutive games in the championships as Mike Szyziuk's Detroit curling club crew scored a pair on the 12th and final end to win.

The Detroit rink includes Szyziuk's brother, Ernie and Wally Hutchuk, all of whom grew up in Grandview, Man., and Nels Brown, raised in Southampton, Ont.

Szyziuk led 4-2 after seven ends Wednesday. Richardson, who won an unprecedented fourth Canadian title last week, came back with two on the eighth but the U.S. went ahead again with a single on the 10th.

Richardson, with cousins Arnold and Garnet Richardson and Mel Perry making up his rink, pulled ahead with two on the 11th but lost it on the final end when Szyziuk came in with last rock for two.

Mantle Returns

Yankees Lose Again

Mickey Mantle returned to the New York Yankees lineup Wednesday, but the world champions nevertheless lost their fourth of five starts in baseball's spring exhibition season.

Detroit Tigers beat them 4-2, taking a quick lead on Rocky Colavito's three-run homer in the first inning.

Mantle, star centre fielder, had been out since he suffered a pulled groin muscle on Sunday. He walked twice and grounded out in three appearances at the plate.

Stan Williams, the big right hander the Yankees obtained from the Dodgers, yielded Colavito's drive.

Canadians Sidelined

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (Reuters)—Canadian badminton players Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver and James Carnwarth of Woodstock, Ont., were eliminated Wednesday night in the opening rounds of a two-day international invitation badminton tournament here.

Macdonnell won 15-4, 15-8 over Denmark's Hans Sverdrup in the opening singles match but later lost to Dane Knud Nielsen, 15-8, 15-7.

Carnwarth lost to Denmark's Joergen Mortensen, 15-12, 15-11.

Man Free Week, Returns to Prison

A man released from Oakalla last week was sentenced to three years in the B.C. penitentiary for stealing a $15 coffee percolator Tuesday night.

Robert Watson, no fixed address, pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court yesterday to breaking and entering and theft.

Const. Richard Ward told the court he was called about 11:40 p.m. Tuesday to investigate the sound of breaking glass in the vicinity of Arrow Furniture Ltd., 1317 Government, and found the plate glass door had been smashed.

At 11:50 p.m. Watson was picked up on Store Street with an electric percolator under his coat. He told Const. Ward a man had given it to him for a drink.

Charles Bland, who was arrested with Watson, was sentenced to 20 days for being intoxicated in a public place.

Car Wash Set

A car wash will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Super-Valu parking lot, Head Street at Esquimalt Road.

Sponsored by the Signal Hill Chapter, Order of DeMolay, the wash will cost 99 cents.

Before Watson was sentenced prosecutor Kenneth Murphy told the court the man had a record back to 1925. He read nine charges of theft and breaking and entering back to 1951.

"That will be enough," Magistrate William Ostler said.

In passing sentence, the magistrate said, "You've spent most of your life in jail. It must be a very dreary existence."

"It is," Watson said.

Acme Sawmills Ltd., 1200 Hallowell, were fined $25 for failing to file an income tax return.

David C. White, HMCS Fraser, was sentenced to four months in prison for stealing a car from David Motors Ltd., 1101 Yates, March 4.

An order for compensation was issued to cover $207.47 damage caused to the car when White drove it into a ditch in Duncan.

"I would advise you to do something very soon about your drinking problem," Magistrate Ostler said. "If you do not you may find yourself in trouble for the rest of your life."

Crash Takes Second Life

A violent accident at Douglas and Blanshard early Sunday claimed its second victim late last night.

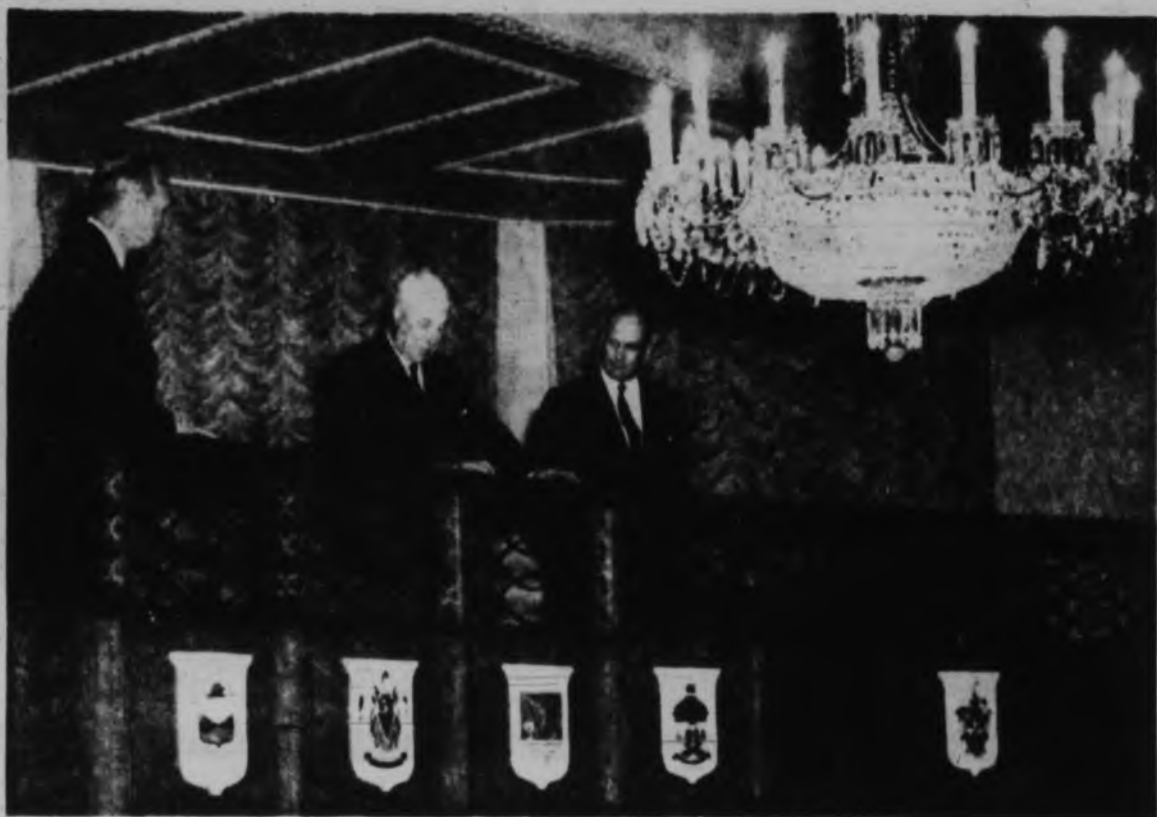

Mrs. Frances Kraft, 39, of 3957 Glenford, driver of a car that struck an apartment rock foundation, died in St. Joseph's Hospital at 11:55 p.m. She never recovered consciousness.

Also killed in the crash was Stanley Ball of 2623 Shelbourne. He died 90 minutes after entering hospital.

Mrs. Kraft is Victoria's third traffic fatality in 1963.

Still in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital early today was Mrs. Josephine Crean, 84, of 1138 Oxford. She was injured when struck by a car at Cook and Oxford March 3.

Victoria Coat-of-Arms in Rightful Place

South Peace River, who gave Dawson Creek coat of arms, fourth from left. Victoria discovered about a year ago it didn't have coat-of-arms, started work immediately and recently got approval for design from Royal College of Heraldry.—(Bud Kinsman)

John D Finds a Hall

For the first time in its history, the Bay Street Armory is to be used for a giant political rally.

Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate Eric Charman said last night he has completed arrangements for rental of the huge armory for a John Diefenbaker rally Monday, March 25.

Between 3,000 and 3,500 seats will be moved into the armory—believed never before to have been used for a political meeting—and there will be plenty of standing room, he said.

Armory—March 25

There will even be a band to entertain the crowd from 6:30 p.m. when the doors open until the rally starts at 8 p.m.

"This probably will be the greatest meeting we have ever had in town. We'll pack it to the gills," said the Tory candidate.

It was not immediately known if the other two political parties whose national leaders will be in Victoria the same week, will also try to rent the armory, but there was considerable behind-the-scenes jockeying earlier in the effort to get the best places available.

Securing the armory for the launching of Prime Minister

Diefenbaker's campaigning in B.C. was considered a major achievement for the 31-year-old Tory candidate, who in 1957 opened Memorial Arena for the first time to a political meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign caught fire in the arena rally and set the pace for his election victory.

"The prime minister is drawing the largest crowds in Canadian political history, and we want to be ready for him when he comes to Victoria," Mr. Charman said.

Sailor Best Speaker

CPO Andre DeBaerenaeker of HMCS Naden last night won the second round of the Golden Gavel speech contest, sponsored by Victoria and Duncan Toastmasters Clubs.

Runner-up was CPO Harold Bailey, also of Naden. CPO DeBaerenaeker spoke on "The Need for a Library."

Both contestants will enter the finals in the St. John Ambulance Auditorium March 25. Third round of the contest will be Friday at 8 p.m.

Mayor Says:

Business Should Have Traffic Problem Voice

The downtown business community should have a voice in the decisions taken to solve traffic problems in the heart of Victoria, Mayor R. B. Wilson said Wednesday.

He said a meeting will be held in a few days with representatives of the Downtown Business Association to hear its views on proposals for a limited one-way street plan.

"That interest shown by DBA is commendable," the mayor

Kiwanis Villa Addition Ready for Early Start

Directors of the Victoria Kiwanis Club gave the green light last night to construction of a $200,000 16-unit addition to the club's Kiwanis Villa for single elderly persons.

Dr. Alan McGill, club president, said work on the project will begin as soon as architects' plans are completed and contracts let. The club hopes to have the addition built in time for the annual Kiwanis fund-raising blitz in the first week of December, he said. Directors of the Kiwanis Village Society, in asking club directors to approve the project, said the addition will enable the villa to operate economically.

In the seven months ended Jan. 31 the villa lost $5,837—about $850 a month. The society said labor costs, which could not easily be reduced, are half the operating costs but the same staff could take care of 16 more units which would bring in more revenue.

The society plans to borrow $31,000 to finance construction, with the rest being financed by a $19,000 B.C. government grant and $10,000 from the Kiwanis Club centennial coin project.

The villa now houses 50 tenants.

In addition to the 16 additional units, the addition is to include a sun lounge and washroom.

NOT INCLUDED
Ultimate plans for the villa include construction of a dining room, permanent kitchen and service rooms. These are not included in the proposed addition.

Society forecasts were that, if the addition went through, the villa would show revenues of $38,736 and expenses of $38,273 in the year ending June 30, 1964. Units rent for $75 a month.

Curtis Still Favors Chinese Fireworks

Victoria will probably continue to press for revision of the provincial fireworks regulations to allow the Chinese community to celebrate its New Year, Ald. Austin Curtis indicated yesterday.

He was commenting on notification received at city hall from the provincial government that it was too late to consider changing the regulations at the current session.

The letter suggested city council repeat its request in a few months so the matter could be brought up for consideration in the 1964 session.

Ald. Curtis, chairman of fire wardens, said: "To the Chinese community this is just as important as Halloween is to us."

Before the city adopted the provincial regulations fireworks used in connection with the Chinese New Year celebrations had caused authorities no trouble, he said.

"They never abused the right to use fireworks and to my knowledge the celebration was always well-handled."

Won't Skip Lectures Today

Students Ask Bonner To Allow Big Rally

Students of Victoria University late last night postponed indefinitely two mock lectures planned for today on the steps of the legislative buildings because they fear prosecution for loitering.

The students decided earlier in the day not to go through with their previous plan of skipping Thursday afternoon lectures, whether the mock lectures went on or not.

A newly-formed student action committee was advised later by a faculty member a mass demonstration of more than 650 students might violate a provincial anti-loitering regulation.

Instead of the action in which two or more faculty members were to have accompanied the students, the committee at 10 p.m. last night sent a telegram to Attorney-General Bonner.

"On behalf of the students of the University of B.C. and Victoria College we wish to request permission to hold two mock lectures on the steps of the legislative buildings Thursday, March 14, from 1:30 p.m. until 2 p.m. in order to demonstrate the possible increase in sizes of university classes."

NO AXE TO GRIND

"We wish to emphasize that this is an organized, responsible action and that we have no political axe to grind."

The telegram was signed by the Action Committee of the Alma Mater Society.

"We are awaiting the assurance of the co-operation of the attorney-general's department before we take any action," an action committee press release said.

NOON TODAY

The committee announced a mass student meeting in the Victoria University auditorium would be held at noon today "to explain the situation to students and decide on a course of action."

"We emphasize this would be an orderly, well-organized demonstration, but as responsible citizens we realize this action could be liable to prosecution," the press release said.

OVERCROWDING

"As part of the student campaign on behalf of higher education, we wish to hold these lectures to demonstrate the problem of overcrowded classrooms. They will consist of one lecture involving 120 students, and one involving 650."

Other students' plans for today remain unchanged.

CANVASS TONIGHT

The canvass for signatures under a petition will begin at 6 p.m. in a blitz throughout the Greater Victoria area.

Friday and Saturday, teams of canvassers will be located at Town and County, Colwood, Royal Oak, Cordova Bay, Sooke and Sidney.

In One Day

The Red Cross blood clinic collected 250 pints at its blood donor clinic Tuesday.

There were 200 pints collected Monday, first day of the three-day clinic. Officials termed the response "very good indeed." Type O donors are especially wanted at today's clinic, 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m. at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort.

Only 157 Patients

Still in Colquitz

Only 157 patients out of 300 once there still remain in Colquitz mental hospital, Health Minister Martin said yesterday.

Revising earlier estimates, but asking "not to be pinned down to a date," he said the government had "high hopes of trying to close up this 19th-century thing" by the end of the year.

He made the comment in the legislature during estimates debate.

Mr. Martin said the public works department had improved the centre but "it still won't meet the needs... it's still a medieval prison."

"We will be extremely happy to close it up."

Varsity Asked For $750,000, Got $300,000

By IAN STREET

Victoria University requested an additional $750,000 in operating grants for the coming year and has received $300,000 of this amount.

The university council, governing body of the local institution, is still maintaining a tight-lipped silence on the amount of the requested grant, but the figure can be arrived at by simple deduction.

It received an operating grant amounting to $1,154,000 for the year ending March 31. Estimates tabled in the legislature recently show the operating grant to the local institution for the coming year will total $1,454,000.

Authorities here confirmed that estimates included only 40 per cent of the requested increase.

If all requests by Victoria University had been granted, therefore, the operating grant would have been $1,854,000—an increase of $700,000 over the year just ending.

Local university spokesmen are disappointed in the operating grant.

Must Face Situation

"Obviously we won't be able to do all the things we had planned to do," said H. E. Farquhar, executive assistant to the principal.

At the moment, he said, the whole university program is being reassessed.

Mr. Farquhar stressed that the administration had no desire to thwart efforts by the student body to win public support for greater financial aid to the university, but said: "We must face the situation as it exists and that is why we are now making a complete re-assessment of our program."

He said the people who know most about the situation, the UBC board of governors and the local university council, presumably have the financial situation in hand.

Mr. Farquhar added that there is no substance to the suggestion made earlier by student spokesmen, that result of the budget cuts could mean increases in the size of classes, denying of admission to some students, and higher fees.

"There have been no discussions dealing with these matters at this point," Mr. Farquhar said.

Wallace Principal Of Oak Bay High

The appointment of J. G. Wallace, vice-principal of Oak Bay Senior High School, to the position of principal of the school was announced by the Greater Victoria school board yesterday.

Mr. Wallace will succeed C. A. Gibbard who retires at the end of June.

The new principal is Victoria-born. After graduating from Victoria normal school he taught throughout the province then returned to UBC and graduated Bachelor of Arts.

He started teaching in Oak Bay Senior High School in 1927 and in 1952 became vice-principal.

Mr. Wallace is married and has a daughter Anne, a student at Royal Jubilee Hospital School of Nursing and two sons, Bruce, a grade 11 student in Oak Bay Senior High School and David, a grade 7 student in Oak Bay Junior High School.

Welfare Has Few 'Chiselers'

Most people who receive social welfare payments are basically honest and "chiseling" is almost non-existent, city welfare administrator William Hooson said Wednesday.

"Anyone we catch chiseling we prosecute," he said. "Last year we had two cases and we have had none so far this year."

"In the whole of British Columbia last year there were less than 70 prosecutions."

CHECKING SYSTEM
"The provincial government has a system of procedures for cross-checking, so by and large there are few cases of people registering in two offices and drawing benefits at both."

"Some social misfits are not reliable and they are often given vouchers for food and accommodation. Some of them spend their days figuring out how they can convert their vouchers to cash and spend the money on liquor."

Big Brother Parley Due Soon

A meeting to consider the formation of a Big Brother unit in Victoria to help delinquent boys will likely be held before the end of the month, but other arrangements were made, Jack Anguish, director of Victoria Community Welfare Council, said Wednesday.

The council decided to form the committee to discuss the question from representatives of 10 appropriate Greater Victoria organizations.

Up to Wednesday not all organizations had appointed their delegates, he said.

"We have no opinion at present," Mr. Abbott said.

The association at its last meeting was considering Ald. Mooney's proposal to make Government one-way south-bound and carry northbound traffic only on Douglas.

Since then, after discussions

The Canadian Diabetic Association, Victoria branch, will give a dance at the Crystal Garden, Friday, March 15, in aid of a camp for diabetic children. Getting in some practice for entertainment during the affair are Mrs. C. Y. Brown, musical director of "Ill Winds"; young Terry McColloch who represents the diabetic children, and Mrs. D. L. Brown, president of the Victoria branch. "Ill Winds" recently donated $185 to the association.—(Bud Kinsman)

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Am I guilty? Can a mother make home so comfortable for her children that they don't want to leave?

My sons are 27 and 29 years old— attractive, well-educated and successful in business. They like girls, but apparently they are too contented with things as they are to exert the energy to make homes of their own.

I was left a widow when my boys were teen-agers. I have a steady income from my husband's estate. I'd love to move into a small apartment but the boys won't let me. They adore this house. I've told them the first one who marries can have the house as a present—but nothing happens.

Both of these young men have a great deal to offer a girl. I pray every night they will get married and have families of their own, but time marches on and here they sit. Please suggest something. — ENOUGH BACHELORHOOD ALREADY.

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes the mama bird has to shove the baby birds out of the nest so they will learn to fly. Start shoving.

Serve notice now that you are looking for an apartment and that they must find another place to live or engage a housekeeper who will stay in the family home with them.

Dear Ann Landers: Is my sister's boy friend cheating the telephone company or not? I say he is. My sister says no. Will you be the judge?

John works nights. He likes to call my sister every few hours just to chat. He usually calls her about 8:30 and 10:30 in the evening. The place where he works has only coin telephones and he can't afford the loot. So he drops the dime into the phone, lets it ring twice and hangs up. That's the signal for her to call him back. She calls him back and they talk—forever. My sister says this is not cheating because John doesn't talk on the dial. All he does is signal her to call him. What's the verdict? Honest or dishonest? DIOGENES.

Dear Diogenes: It's dishonest. Telephones are instruments of communication—not signalling devices. When you add up all the chisellers who are trying to beat the system by signalling in a variety of ways it represents an enormous amount of tied-up equipment for which the company gets no revenue. Somebody has to pay for these shenanigans, and who do you think it is? You and I, Bun.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm enclosing a clipping from the society section of our newspaper. As you can see, six hostesses have joined hands to give a luncheon for a bride-to-be.

I can understand two women giving a party together, particularly if they are related, or if one has a large home and the other has not. But SIX women hosting one party. Really! I know two of these women well, a third is a casual acquaintance, and the other three have never been inside my home.

I've always been taught that when one accepts an invitation he is obliged to reciprocate. Does this mean I am now indebted to six women who got together to give one party? Please enlighten me. — LUMPED.

Dear Lumped: Sorry, Old Girl, but when several hostesses band together to entertain and you accept the invitation, you are then obligated to each of them. If this sort of "togetherness" irritates you, don't accept.

Confidential to Turn: "What you don't know can't hurt you" is a meaningless collection of words. What you don't know CAN hurt you—and plenty. Ignorance is dangerous. Get the correct information from your physician and stop burying your head like an ostrich.

Christianity 'Not Enough'

TORONTO (CP)—The World Federation of Methodist Women, with a membership of 6,000,000 in 47 countries, is helping stamp out illiteracy and provide leadership training in underdeveloped countries, Federation President Mrs. Raymond J. Latham of Sydney, Australia, said Monday night. Mrs. Latham told a conference of the United Church Women, an affiliate of the federation, that Christianity alone is not enough to cure the ills of the world, including communism.

Mrs. Latham left Australia Jan. 6 to attend a meeting of the Methodist Latin American Confederation in Mexico City. She will meet federation members in England, the Middle East and India.

Man in the Kitchen

A stew as any dictionary will tell you, is a dish consisting of meat and several vegetables cooked together by boiling slowly. This description sounds rather mundane, and I consider it a very unfair description of a dish which is not only satisfying but is also exciting, aromatic, good to look at and, in addition, is most responsive to the individual touch. A cook can experiment with a stew and have a grand time. Just think of the possibilities—beef stew, beef and kidney stew, chicken stew (with dumplings, please!), oxtail stew, fish stew (chowder) and many others. The advantages are several—the main course is cooked all at the same time, which is a labor-saving device—they are economical as often as not, and the cooking time which varies from one and a half to three hours allows the cook plenty of spare time for other chores or even for relaxation. Admittedly, the stew is usually considered a winter dish, but we still have a long way to go before we hit the balmy days again, so here is a recipe for you to try:

OXTAIL STEW
(For four to six people)
Four lbs. oxtail—disjointed, flour for dredging, 4 tbsps. fat or oil and butter mixed, 2 medium onions—chopped,

3-4 cups beef bouillon, 2 tbsps. lemon juice, salt and pepper. Four carrots sliced, bouquet garni consisting of 1 bay leaf, 2 sprigs parsley, oregano, celery leaves and six peppercorns tied together in cheesecloth; 4 stalks celery chopped, 1 cup sliced mushrooms; sautéed in butter, 3 tbsps. butter, creamed and mixed with 3 tbsps. of flour. Dredge the oxtail in flour. In a heavy stew pan brown the oxtail pieces on all sides. Add the onions and continue to sauté until the onions are transparent. Add the bouillon to cover the oxtail pieces, the lemon juice, bouquet garni and salt and pepper. Cover tightly and simmer until the meat is almost tender—roughly two and a half hours. Add the carrots, celery and mushrooms and cook until the vegetables are tender. Remove the meat and vegetables to a platter and keep hot. Add the butter and flour mixture to the sauce in the pan and stir until well-blended. Bring to the boil and boil for one minute. Pour over the meat and vegetables. Serve with potatoes or rice.

Ban Beetles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The agriculture department has stern advice for persons who buy and wear decorated live beetles as costume jewelry: "Destroy them."

The department said several live beetles have been intercepted at U.S. borders. Importation of such live insects is restricted, because they may escape and damage crops or forests. Customs officials recently seized nearly 200 live, jeweled beetles in New York City. These beetles had been brought into the United States without authorization and were being sold in local bars.

Daffodils and tulips decorated the altar of St. Andrew's United Church, Alberni, for the marriage of Ellen Lois Orth and AB Wayne Leonard Buck. Rev. Roy Rogers officiated at the double ring ceremony. Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Orth, Alberni, and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Buck, Gull Lake, Sask.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an elegant floor-length gown white organza. A full hooped skirt billowed to the floor. The softly molded bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves. A chapel veil misted from a coronet highlighted with seed pearls and aurora borealis. She carried red roses.

The bride's twin sister, Edna Orth, was maid of honor and the groom's sister, Lorrie Buck, was bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in aqua dresses and wore toning whistles.

Mike Creedon was best man and Bill Orth and Les Young ushered guests to the pews.

Mr. A. Shirrow proposed the toast at the reception held at the Barclay Hotel. For her honeymoon, the new Mrs. Buck chose a beige suite with brown accessories. Her corsage was three red orchids. The couple spent their honeymoon in Palm Springs, Calif., and will make their home in Victoria.

'Fix Was On' for Firm To Win Road Contract

By TERRY HAMMOND

Highway probe star witness Dick Holzworth testified Wednesday morning "the fix was on" for his firm to win a $727,000 Trans-Canada Highway contract near Creston.

He made the statement in reply to a question from Donald Smith (SC-Victoria) as the legislative public accounts committee probing serious accusations against the highway department held its fourth stormy public hearing.

The morning session saw demands for a royal commission to replace the controversial committee probe and for RCMP investigators to dig up material.

Seeks Mounties

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said the committee was hampered by lack of an investigative staff and said he will move that RCMP personnel be detached for the purpose.

Holzworth said he was to get Project 1023 for 7.45 miles of highway so he could recoup some $200,000 lost on an earlier job.

"You mean the fix was on?" asked Mr. Smith.

"The fix was on," replied the witness.

Mr. Smith asked him if it was a conspiracy to get his money back.

"Yes," Mr. Holzworth answered.

"You were part of a conspiracy?" Mr. Smith asked.

"I don't know if I was. I just wanted my money back."

As usual the hearing played to capacity crowd. The morning session adjourned at noon and the hearing resumed at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. Holzworth said under cross-examination by Angelo Branca, counsel for the highways department, that he had no direct knowledge of any favors extended to him or his firm by Mr. Gagliardi or members of the department.

He said his information came from Clyde Thornton, vice-president of Union Contractors.

Nor did he know of any real favors gained through Burton Lymburner, the contact man to which Union paid $1,000 a month for "going to Gagliardi and keeping the door greased."

"Get Well Project"

Tuesday he had testified that he lost about $200,000 on Project 819 but that his firm was given Project 1023 "to get well on." Morning testimony centered around Project 1023.

"Do you suggest 1023 was a favor to you?" asked Mr. Branca.

"It was supposed to be, but it sure wasn't," the contractor replied.

He testified Mr. Thornton told him the highways minister had told him what to bid and said, "You have to bid on the job before we can help you."

"We were promised we would get mile after mile after we bid the first stretch."

Gagliardi Promise

"We would be able to get mile after mile until we ended up at the Salmo cut-off. That was a promise from Gagliardi to Thornton. I was not present."

When Mr. Branca asked about direct knowledge of favors, the Montana contractor answered that he wasn't aware of any actually handed out "unless you call a favor changing figures on a cheque and giving advances for work not done."

"There was no favor that I actually saw."

Saved $500,000

Mr. Branca asked if he knew whether the taxpayers lost money on Project 819 and Mr. Holzworth said, "I think we saved the taxpayers about half a million dollars."

"The taxpayers did stand to lose a lot of money if nobody came in here to take over."

L & M Logging (the prime contractor later taken over by Union Contractors).

Replying to cross-examination he said he had no knowledge that a federal engineer measured up the project after it was completed and found everything to be correct.

On Tuesday Holzworth testified that padding and altering of estimates had resulted in the company getting paid $135,000 for work which was never performed.

Part of the Deal

He told Mr. Branca that retaining Mr. Lymburner as a contact man was part of the deal when Union took over the job from L & M.

He said he thought there was a contract covering Mr. Lymburner's employment and naming his salary as $1,000 a month.

He didn't know if Mr. Lymburner's duties were outlined in the contract but they were established verbally.

"Do you know if Lymburner ever got any favors for any of the companies from anybody in the department of highways?" asked the department's counsel.

"I can't say," the witness answered.

Denies Statement

He denied a suggestion by Mr. Branca he had ever told anyone that Mr. Gagliardi would be happy to pay him $140,000 he had lost before the legislative session was over.

Had he ever made any formal claims on the highways department for further payments?

"I asked to get the $38,000 bid cheque returned for this get well job at Creston."

He said he hadn't made any other claims yet.

The morning session was punctuated with the usual rapid-fire exchanges between government and opposition members of the committee.

Full Audit Asked

At one point Jim Rhodes (NDP-Delta) moved that the books of one of the companies be subjected to a full audit.

Chairman Irvine Corbett ruled that no motions could be placed before the committee while witnesses were being examined.

"We did it yesterday," objected Opposition Leader Strachan.

"Well, we're not doing it today," the chairman ruled.

"Mr. chairman, I charge you with changing the goal posts," shouted Mr. Rhodes.

During another bitter exchange Randolph Harding (NDP-Kaslo-Slocan) asked government members "why don't you throw all the opposition members off?"

"I want order in this committee," shouted Mr. Irvine.

Tell Him to Shut Up

"Well, tell this member to shut up," said Mr. Strachan, pointing to Dan Campbell (SC-Cornox) who had interrupted.

During another exchange Mr. Strachan bellowed, "Let's go back to the House and report that we can't agree and ask for a royal commission."

Twice during the morning session the opposition leader took out a heavy law book and read passages on the admissibility of evidence.

When committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie, with whom he had feuded most of Tuesday, asked him to explain one passage, Mr. Strachan agreed to "lead him by the hand" and proceeded to explain it.

Mr. Holzworth testified under examination by Mr. Strachan that Mr. Thornton said he had been told by Mr. Gagliardi what to bid in order to get Project 1023.

Cites Bid Advice

Gagliardi told him don't bid over $1.25 for rock or 30 cents for dirt," said the witness.

"I never would have bid that low."

He agreed with Mr. Strachan that the low bid resulted in the company entering a lower tender for Project 1023 when it became a 7.45 mile job than when it was first put to tender at 5.2 miles.

The bid on the greater mileage was about $50,000 less, he said.

He denied under further cross-examination by Mr. Branca that he was out to cheat the public. He said he simply hoped to recover out of Project 1023 the money he lost on 819.

Bidding Charges

Timber Operator Hits at Accuser

VICTORIA (CP)—A Kamloops timber operator who has been accused of forcing the price of timber to an exorbitant level defended his position Wednesday and made counter-charges before the legislature's standing committee on forestry.

C. V. Bennett submitted a brief under legislature immunity which charged that C. C. Ternan, first vice-president of Savona Timber Co. Ltd., and the company started "these vicious bidding practices against us which he now deplores."

In his brief presented last week, Mr. Ternan said Mr. Bennett as president of Haisson Planning Mills Ltd., and Terrace Forest Products Ltd., was forcing up the bidding on timber to make other operators pay an unrealistic price for his mill.

Another brief signed by 10 operators of the Kamloops area said an operator—not named—has suggested to others "that the established permanent mills in the Kamloops region could combine and pay him $500,000 for his investments, generously estimated to be worth $100,000 including timber."

In his submission Wednesday, Mr. Bennett submitted his companies' books which said showed combined assets in excess of $1,000,000. He said this was appreciable evidence of responsibility.

Hurt Party Name

Toronto Dissidents Face Sacred Ouster

TORONTO (CP)—The vice-president of the Social Credit party's Ontario organization said Wednesday he has called for an executive meeting to discipline—and possibly expel—party candidates and members in Toronto who are hurting Social Credit's name in the province.

Vice-President Norman Pert said a Toronto party worker, E. M. Pritchard, has offered to resign for harming the Social Credit cause in making certain statements about members of other parties. He indicated the resignation will be accepted.

One case to be considered is that of Neil Carmichael, candidate for Toronto St. Paul's, who has been accused of anti-Semitic statements.

"I have requested a meeting of the executive to discuss the problems we are having with some individuals who are pronouncing their own pet theories, which are not the party's," Mr. Pert said.

NDP Drives for Funds To Wage Quebec Battle

OTTAWA (UPI)—The New Democratic Party Wednesday appealed nationally for campaign funds to wage an election fight in Quebec, where it claims to have discovered increasing support in the past two weeks.

NDP sources would not predict how many of Quebec's 75 seats they might win April 8, but forecast an increase in its popular vote by winning some of the "what-have-you-got-to-lose" vote and the anti-nuclear vote away from Social Credit.

NATIONAL DRIVE

The federal campaign committee announced it had decided at a meeting in Toronto to ask the party's riding associations, across the country for contributions.

"We are on the verge of an historic breakthrough in Quebec," declared party secretary Terence Grier.

"We are appealing to our membership throughout the country for help in consolidating this tremendous new wave of support."

"We are confident there will be a large response, for all of us are conscious of the immense importance to any Canadian political party of a strong base in Quebec."

An NDP campaign strategist said the support has been detected only in the past two weeks and came as a "complete surprise." He said in some ridings where the party had not intended to run a candidate, local groups have put up their own man.

Salmon Fishing Opens June 10

OLYMPIA (AP)—The commercial salmon fishing season in Puget Sound will run from June 10 to Nov. 30, the department of fisheries announced Wednesday.

Chinook and silver salmon fishing will be limited to four days a week and sockeye and chum salmon to three days.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plate. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not cause "check" (plate odor breath). Get FASTTEETH at drug counters everywhere. Advt.

Garden Notes

What a Marigold!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In looking over my notes on our first Colonist free seed offer for 1963, it seems to me I haven't explained very clearly just what it is about the new Pfitzer Hybrid marigolds that makes them superior to the older kinds. The flowers are larger and more graceful, for one thing, and without the stiffness associated with the more conventional kinds. The blooms are held well clear of the plants on long, straight stems, ideal for cutting, and start blooming several weeks earlier than the older varieties. An even more important point of superiority is the ease with which the Pfitzer Hybrids can be grown. By and large, the African marigolds have not been the easiest flowers in the world to raise, for the older types took such a very long time to reach the flowering stage. This meant starting the seeds under glass as early as February in order to have flowers in the garden by midsummer.

The first break in the development of "easy" marigolds came several years ago when the Petite class was bred. Those were much earlier, and for the first time it was possible to delay sowing until April and simply stick the seeds in the ground outdoors like so many radishes. Trouble was, the Petite marigolds were no good as cut flowers, for the blooms were small and the plants dwarf and compact—fine for edging and for window boxes but too short-stemmed for use in vases and bowls.

At this point the problem was to combine in some way the earliness and ease of culture of the Petites with the big flowers, long stems and imposing plants of the Climax and Crackerjack and Mammoth Mum types. Such a combination isn't easy to achieve.

You may remember the story of the famous dancer Isadora Duncan, who shocked society by proposing to George Bernard Shaw that they should have a child who would combine her beauty with his brains. Shaw declined the honor, expressing his fears the child might have his beauty and her brains.

Much the same thing happened in the first attempts to breed a footplant marigold instead of combining Petite's earliness with Crackerjack's size, the firstborn of this mating had Crackerjack's late season of bloom and Petite's dwarf habit of growth.

Eventually, several hybridizers came up with highly satisfactory marigolds—Super King from California and Summer Sunshine from Australia are good examples, but it remained for Hans Pfitzer of Stuttgart to hit the jackpot. His flowers are fully double, with a form rather like a giant carnation, frequently as much as five inches across, mostly in shades of cream, yellow, orange and gold, and carried on long, straight stems well above bushy plants some 2½ feet tall.

From seeds sown in early April, the plants should be covered in bloom by the end of June and will continue to produce flowers right through until fall. Like sweet peas, the more you pick 'em, the better they bloom.

As far as hardiness goes, there is no reason why you shouldn't sow the seeds outdoors where they are to bloom. The seeds are rather small and could easily be washed out or battered down by heavy rain, and for this reason, I think seeds for an outdoor sowing should be sown very shallowly and each one covered with a jam jar to protect it from the elements.

A safer way is to start the seeds in a sunny window, transplanting them outdoors when the plants are big enough to stand up under wind and rain; we'll discuss this in my next column.

In the meantime, if you haven't requested your free seeds yet, I suggest you get your letter or coupon away immediately.

The Racy World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

'A Quid on Greg's Gray'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Gregory Peck will fly to England next Thursday to see his horse. Owen's Sledge, run the next day in the Grand National, then fly back to Hollywood in time to report the following Monday morning to resume filming in Captain Newman, M.D. Greg bought the horse last year from the O'Farrell Brothers in Ireland. It is referred to by British sports writers as "Greg's Gray," housewives call the bookies and say, "I'll have a quid on Greg's Gray."

Shelly Winters, the new slim Shelley, has found herself a gorgeous looking escort in Alejandro Rey.

Jane Wyman's pilot with Dennis Weaver, Take a Giant Step, seems to have been shelved. And Dennis may be limping again in Gwasmoke. . . . Which reminds me, Amanda Blake who plays Kitty, used to have a problem in pictures because she looked so much like Greer Garson. This has not hurt her in television obviously.

Mr. Fredericks of Max Factor's spent three quarters of a million dollars of his company's money in Europe recently, buying up all the hair he could find. The wig craze, started by Factors, has caused a great shortage of woman's crowning glory—for sale that is.

Jerry Lewis' eldest son Gary, will be graduating from military academy in June. I asked Jerry, "Does he still want to be an actor?" "More than ever," he replied. "I have told him, I will give you two years to get started on your own. If you don't, then you must go to college." Jerry flew to New York to preview his picture, The Nutty Professor. I hear the reaction was excellent.

Chit Robertson, very much in the limelight because of his starring role in PT109, is making the telephone company richer with his calls to New York model, Jane Blackwell.

Gene Barry is playing his original stage role in Mary Mary with Debbie Reynolds and Mike Rennie, in the Mervyn Leroy film.

I am very unhappy over the fact that Rosalind Russell was not Oscar-nominated for her truly inspired performance in Gypsy. I think she was better than at least two of the ladies who were nominated.

I am going back to my original choice for the best actress. I will stand or fall as a predictor, with Geraldine Page.

Director? David Lean for his fantastic deserts in Lawrence of Arabia. The picture? To Kill a Mockingbird. Angela Lansbury and Omar Sharif in the supporting category. I haven't quite made up my mind about the best song. And while 100 per cent right in my choices last year, I could be completely wrong this year when there are so many pictures and performances on the same level.

Michael Rennie and Mary Gardiner, who was formerly married to director Otto Preminger, will be married in the summer, Mike told me.

Comedian Jerry Lewis tries barbells with disastrous result in scene in new movie, The Nutty Professor.

No one is taking the Rock Hudson-Edie Adams dates seriously, least of all Edie and Rock. Or Marilyn Maxwell. Dolores will join husband Bob Hope, in the Bahamas. I hope the trip is for a vacation.

Troy Donahue is thankful that his studio is now concentrating on movies rather than television. "I hope I never work in a series again," he told me. His next movie will be The Distant Trumpet. "And the girl could be Suzanne Pleshette," who could be Mrs. Troy Donahue. "We've talked about marriage," Troy admitted.

Connie Stevens used to date Glenn Ford. And she is still in a state of shock over that announcement of Glenn's "engagement" to Linda Christian. I don't suppose we will ever know whether Glenn was joking, or merely had morning-after thoughts on the matter.

"Why didn't you and Glenn marry?" I asked the petite pretty blonde actress. "He was too sophisticated for me," she replied. "A young person likes to find things out for herself. And sometimes I'd be afraid to giggle or chatter." Well, for everyone's information, Glenn's glorious new home has only one bedroom, so it doesn't look as though he was planning marriage with anyone.

Book on Divorce Spicy, Pathetic

By RUDOLF FLESH II

If one juicy divorce case makes an interesting reading, then 13 juicy divorce cases make 13 times as interesting reading.

That seems to be the underlying theory of The Seventh Commandment by T. H. Tracy (Abelard Schuman), and it works out fine. The divorce stories—based on court records—run from 18th century England to 20th century America and each one of them is an amusing, spicy, pathetic, disgusting, hilarious and fascinating.

The upshot of them all is that wives (or husbands) will stop at nothing to deceive their spouses, that husbands (or wives) simply love to be deceived and that neighbors, friends, servants and in-laws always know about every thing.

Mr. Tracy, who's a lawyer, throws in a lot of practical information that might come in handy some day. Here, for instance, is how to stage a surprise raid to catch your husband (or wife) in the act of adultery.

"Surveillance is an essential prelude to every raid. . . . The shadowing is necessary in order to establish identity and to show disposition, association, conduct and habits and routine which should lead to the trysting location. If possible, movies should be taken of the pair during the daytime meetings."

"On the raid, the posse should be led by the spouse, and a witness-friend who can identify the offending spouse. If possible, have as many lay witnesses take part in the raid as can be rounded up, and make certain an expert photographer is included who should take flash photos during the agonizing excitement. One picture may be worth a thousand words to a newspaper, and one revealing photo of the lovers will be so which the law describes as in overwhelming and persuasive flagrant delicto.

"The lawyer should not, under any circumstances, be a Paul Pry and participate in the raid. If he does so, he puts himself in the position of being a witness for his client, which is contrary to the canon of ethics. There have been instances where lawyers have insisted on going over the top with the raiders and testifying as to details connected with the raid, and although their evidence was only cumulative, their action was condemned as unnecessary and unseemly."

"In places where adultery is a crime it may be possible to fortify the raiding party by the addition of a policeman, who will act as a welcome catalytic agent."

"In any event, it requires talismanic powers, a sense of deep perception associated with a surplus of spending money and extraordinary good worth a thousand words to a newspaper, and one revealing photo of the lovers will be so which the law describes as in overwhelming and persuasive flagrant delicto."

"The lawyer should not, under any circumstances, be a Paul Pry and participate in the raid. If he does so, he puts himself in the position of being a witness for his client, which is contrary to the canon of ethics. There have been instances where lawyers have insisted on going over the top with the raiders and testifying as to details connected with the raid, and although their evidence was only cumulative, their action was condemned as unnecessary and unseemly."

TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

Channel 5 has something unusual lined up tonight at 10 an award-winning documentary which strikes out at the "voluntary" regimentation of the American people.

Produced in Philadelphia, Coniformity deals with the American (and for that matter, Canadian) adherence to the "accepted way" of thinking, talking and doing. The point it tries to make is that unthinking compliance to standard patterns makes the U.S. vulnerable to communism.

I strongly suspect there'll be more than a little flag waving before the 60-minute show is over, but it should be worth watching. Cast of more than 200 was used to re-create on location situations in schools, factories and housing developments, which indicate the extremes to which conformity is carried.

Patience gang. We'll film the way police commercial just as soon as this cotton pickin' piano gets dusty.

Witness Tells Prober

Negro Uprising Planned

PAARL, South Africa (Reuters) — A Negro witness has told an investigating commission that the African Pogo uprising this year in which South Africa white residents would be killed.

"Each man would provide his own weapon," the unnamed witness told a commission inquiring into riots here last November in which six Negroes were shot and two whites hacked to death.

TO DO SABOTAGE

"We were also told the telephone wires would be cut and the railway lines broken so that the trains could not run," the witness said.

He said a plan was outlined at Pogo meetings for taking over of the country in 1963.

WOULD BE READY

"We were told that Sobuke (Robert Sobuke, former leader of the Pan-African Congress, jailed for three years in 1960 for incitement) wanted soldiers who would be ready when he came out of jail. . . .

"Pogo aimed at taking the country from the whites for the Bantu."

Flame-Thrower Used In Anti-Fly Battle

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP)—He's trying to persuade housewives to wrap their garbage in them, rejecting the old-fashioned garbage cans as fly-catchers.

The bags, introduced in Waterloo, Ont., two years ago, are designed to hang in the basement with the top loosely knotted until full. Then the housewife tightens the knot and wrestles the hulking sack to the sidewalk.

Mr. Whitaker's subtle selling job for the bags, which his department sells at five cents each, has an unusual reverse twist. He makes people interested by laughing at the bags.

In press releases and in a five-minute daily radio program, Mr. Whitaker delights in detailing the strange uses people are finding for the bags. They have, he says, seen service as laundry bags, Christmas wrapping paper and raincoats. Occasionally he reminds listeners they are for garbage too.

Pembroke citizens also remember delightedly Mr. Whitaker's Golden Garbage Can contest in which the housewife with the best-dressed garbage can won the rather paradoxical prize of a romantic candlelight dinner for two. The contest has become an annual event and has spread to other Canadian communities.

In 1958 Mr. Whitaker upset the town's centennial plans by ordering the destruction of most of the crockery in a church women's group kitchen.

When doctors were slow to organize anti-polio vaccine clinics, he organized his own.

"Never say die" is his motto, except where insects are concerned.

Green plastic bags are Mr. Whitaker's latest weapons against disease-carrying flies.

Other Whitaker tricks are less macabre. After three years of failing to tape the insect siren song, he has managed nonetheless to reduce the Pembroke mosquito population by coating the stagnant pools where they breed with oil, smothering the eggs.

"Mosquitoes never travel far from their birthplace, except when wind-borne," he says. "Interfere with the life cycle and you destroy the local mosquito population."

No Change Likely In Newsmen Law

LONDON (Reuters) — The government has told the House of Commons it could not hold out any hope of altering the law which can force a reporter to disclose his source of information or go to prison.

Attorney-General Sir John Hobson resisted pressure from opposition Labor party members for a change.

They had referred to the case of reporters Reginald Foster and Brendan Mulholland, now serving prison sentences for refusing to name the sources for stories about convicted admiral spy William Vassall.

With a view to "preserving the freedom of the press" they urged an amendment in the 1952 act of Parliament under which the security tribunal which sentenced the two reporters was set up.

Labor members tried to get an immediate emergency debate as "a definite matter of urgent public importance," but Speaker Sir Harry Wilson-Foster ruled such a debate out of order.

Mulholland of The Daily Mail was sentenced to six months in prison and Foster of The Daily Sketch to three months. They began serving the terms last Thursday.

'Truth Squad' Gets Blaze of Publicity

By ALAN DONNELLY
MONTREAL, N.B. (CP)—The Liberal "truth squad" went into operation Wednesday night in a July La Marche, MP for Niagara Falls in the last Parliament, heard Prime Minister Diefenbaker use the word "truth" a score or more times during a 65-minute speech here, though not once did he refer directly to them.

The squad, equipped with portable typewriter, tape recorder and a small suitcase full of reference material, sat just below the stage at a table decorated with a large alignment of typewritten bulletins taking issue with four of Mr. Diefenbaker's statements.

The third member of the group, Fred Belaire from Liberal headquarters in Ottawa, had the job of looking up references in the squad's file of government statistics, newspaper clippings and Hansard reports of Commons debates.

There were mixed bows and cheers from the audience when a preliminary speaker referred to the squad, reading some doggerel verse starting "the ghosts are with us tonight."

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker said with pointed emphasis that he welcomes those who "desire the truth." He, too, turned to rhyme, adding:

"For while the light holds forth to burn

Vancouver Chooses Coliseum for 1967

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver will build a downtown coliseum as its project for Canada's 1967 centenary.

It has selected a site opposite the Queen Elizabeth Theatre for the $10,000,000 project—but still to be found is the $10,000,000. Mayor Bill Rathie said he will apply immediately to Ottawa for a grant toward the Pacific Trade and Convention Centre.

Thompson Charges:

Tory, Liberal Policies 'Bungling, Outmoded'

GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP)—National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson Wednesday night criticized the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties for what he called "bungling and outmoded" policies.

Speaking to about 475 persons in the auditorium of Grande Prairie High School, he said both parties are failing the Canadian people.

The old political parties, Mr. Thompson said, are trying to meet "our problems with people and policies that belong to the last century."

April 3 Delivery For New Ferry

April 3 is the day the government will take delivery of the newest B.C. Toll Authority ferry, Queen of Esquimalt, from Victoria Machinery Depot, ferry system general manager Monty Aldous said Wednesday night.

In the meantime the new Queen is on final trials in Juan de Fuca Strait after leaving the government graving dock at Esquimalt.

A mummified rat, believed dead about 30 years, was found Wednesday inside a hollow beam in a house on Garden Street during renovations.

Contractor Robert Bruce, 1117 Taunton, last night estimated the age of the house as 30 years and said the rat apparently was sealed inside the hollow beam while it was being made.

Central Saanich has accepted an invitation to join the Greater Victoria metropolitan board of health.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee was named by council this week as the municipality's representative on the board, and Coun. Ray Lamont will be the alternate.

Hugo Spilker, who built the new pipe organ at Emmanuel Baptist Church, will explain and demonstrate it at a meeting Saturday of the Victoria chapter, Royal Canadian College of Organists.

The public is welcome to the recital at 8 p.m. at the church, at 1900 Fernwood.

Family in Servitude Teacher Held Guilty

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A part-time teacher of religion was convicted Wednesday of holding a Mexican family of seven in involuntary servitude on his chicken farm.

David Shackney, 52, was convicted on all six counts of the government's charge in the first known case of its kind in Connecticut.

He faces up to 30 years in prison and fines of up to $30,000 or both.

Cab driver Luis Humberto $1,800.

Oros met Shackney in Mexico City in 1961, where Shackney had gone to seek farm labor.

He begged for a chance to go to the U.S. Shackney agreed to finance the trip, the government maintained, by making Oros sign notes for $1,800 and an employment contract.

Shackney made the travel arrangements, which cost no more than $500.

Oros' pay went to Shackney, who deducted it from the $1,800.

Hospital Issue

Martin Challenged To Name Officials

Liberal leader Ray Perrault called Monday on Health Minister Martin to name hospital officials he says are playing politics.

He said the minister "smeared" all hospital boards by saying the board members were playing politics in a statement in Parliament last October.

Mr. Martin rose in the legislature to say he was referring only to some members of boards.

Mr. Perrault said the minister should name the persons he is referring to clear the name of others who devoted their time and effort for the community.

Mr. Martin said he was not smearing but only making legitimate criticism.

"I did not say hospital boards are playing politics with the health of B.C.," he stated. "I said some of them were or have done."

Mr. Perrault said there was not a sufficient degree of co-operation between the minister and the hospitals. The Hospital Insurance Service did not tell hospitals early enough what their budget allocations would be.

Hospital boards were being "hamstrung by the government."

Mr. Martin said the hospitals do not send their budgets to ECHS in time.

Mr. Martin said the government would go ahead with a complete health plan, only in conjunction with the federal government.

To call for chronic hospitals, he said not enough use is being made of government assistance available for construction.

Mr. Perrault said the minister should name the persons he is referring to clear the name of others who devoted their time and effort for the community.

Mr. Martin said he was not smearing but only making legitimate criticism.

"I did not say hospital boards are playing politics with the health of B.C.," he stated. "I said some of them were or have done."

Mr. Perrault said there was not a sufficient degree of co-operation between the minister and the hospitals. The Hospital Insurance Service did not tell hospitals early enough what their budget allocations would be.

Mr. Martin said the hospitals do not send their budgets to ECHS in time.

Mr. Martin said the government would go ahead with a complete health plan, only in conjunction with the federal government.

To call for chronic hospitals, he said not enough use is being made of government assistance available for construction.

Fisheries

Probe Opens Today

Fishermen's union representatives from all over coastal B.C. will appear before a B.C. legislature committee today to oppose proposals to open northern B.C. and Alaska waters to the Japanese fishing fleet.

About 50 delegates from the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.) will be one of several groups to appear before the legislature's special committee on fisheries, with William Murray, Social Credit M.L.A. from Prince Rupert, as chairman.

OPPOSE CHANGE

The fishermen's union delegation will speak against a proposed change in the International North Pacific Fisheries Treaty, which would allow the Japanese to fish herring off the west coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands and halibut from the eastern Bering Sea.

The fishermen's delegation, headed by Homer Stevens, B.C. secretary-treasurer of the union, will also discuss other matters including conflicts of interest between fishermen and other resource users such as loggers and hydro-electric power development.

The Fisheries Association of B.C., Amalgamated Conservation Society, and other groups also are to make submissions to the committee today.

Victorians Awarded Fellowships

Three Victoria men are among 96 Canadian university students who have been awarded Woodrow Wilson fellowships for first-year study at the graduate school of their choice.

The awards are valued at $1,500 each plus tuition fees and allowances for dependents. They are awarded by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, Princeton, N.J., in an attempt to increase the supply of college teachers.

Michiel Horn of 523 Harbinger, a history student at Victoria University, is one of the winners. The other two are attending UBC—Charles Nelson Brown, 1651 Fairfield, a physics student, and John Leslie Scadding, 1204 Clover, an economics student.

Meetings Today In Victoria

Victoria Gladiolus Society will hold a meeting in the library of the Welfare Centre at Cook and Caledonia at 8 p.m. today. J. E. Bosher will show slides and talk on his recent tour of England.

Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay will celebrate St. Patrick's Day a little early at a meeting in Oak Bay Beach Hotel starting at 6:15 p.m. A special program has been planned.

Alec Merriman, city editor of The Daily Colonist, will give an illustrated talk on fishing on the San Juan River at a meeting of the Rotary Club of Victoria in the Empress Hotel at 12:10 p.m.

Rod Clark, senior assistant engineer of the city of Victoria's planning division, will speak at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria, 55 Beaver, at 7:30 a.m.

Marine Life Movies Here Soon

National Audubon Society marine life expert Bartram Cadbury will show movies and talk on the topic Pastures of the Sea in Oak Bay Junior High School Auditorium March 22 and 23 at 8 p.m.

Mr. Cadbury is the author of the book Life in Shallow Water, one of the illustrated books in the Doubleday Audubon Nature Series. He has also written Community of Living Things in Fresh and Salt Water, the second volume of a series on wildlife habitats which is used in many schools throughout the country.

For 10 years during the summer he has been an instructor in marine life at the Audubon Camp of Maine.

No Time to Eat

Pint-Sized Politician Invades Island

By JACK FRY
Colonist Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Timing of New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas' arrival on Vancouver Island yesterday was so critical 200 persons were halfway through their luncheon when the guest of honor walked into the CCF hall in Nanaimo.

The throng of NDP supporters rose in their places to give their leader a rousing round of applause, then sat down again to finish their meal.

Mr. Douglas didn't have time to eat. He was about to sink a fork into his portion of baked ham when he was called upon to give a speech.

The rush apparently was caused by the fact many had to get back to work. As it was, Mr. Douglas' 40-minute speech lasted until 1:10 p.m.

NOT A CHANCE

"I haven't had a chance to eat," said the pint-sized NDP leader, as he pulled back his chair at the head table and stood up on it.

"The Douglases will do almost anything for a free meal including coming to Nanaimo, where they didn't get it," he continued.

Mr. Douglas said he has heard "marvellous reports" of the "fine campaign" the NDP is putting on in Esquimalt-Saanich but did not mention the NDP campaign in Victoria.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidate John Windsor was at the luncheon.

Serum Flown to Boy

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. Coast Guard sent out a plane from Elizabeth City, N.C., Wednesday night carrying anti-rabies serum to help a Canadian boy who was bitten by a dog several days ago in Alberta.

The dog died and authorities suspect it had rabies.

The boy is Andrew McLeod, 4, son of Dr. H. R. McLeod of Killam, Alta., who moved to Canada two years ago from England.

Dr. McLeod said the bite "was very very small . . . and most unlikely to be rabies."

He explained the boy, two sisters and their mother were travelling to Southampton.

In Edmonton, Dr. Stuart Smith, director of local health services for the Alberta health department, said officials only "suspect" the dog was rabid but want "nothing left to chance."

He disclosed the boy's body was sent to Lethbridge for a rabies test, and there is an "equal possibility it could be distemper."

A definite report will not be available for several days and, if it shows the dog did not have rabies, the Queen Elizabeth will be notified immediately so the painful inoculations can be halted.

Dr. David Price, U.S. deputy surgeon-general who got the call for help from Dr. Smith, said: "We were only too glad to help."

Grit Squad Hears

'Truth Hurts' John D Foes

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—With a Liberal "truth squad" listening intently, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night his Conservative government is getting the voters' support because it gives them "the whole truth."

In a vigorous speech to a crowd of 1,400, Mr. Diefenbaker rolled off reams of statistics on economic growth and on government measures to help the Atlantic area.

"Give 'em hell, John," shouted a man in the filled-to-capacity high school auditorium.

SOUNDS THAT WAY

"I never do," the prime minister shot back with a smile. "I simply tell the truth and it sounds that way to the Grits."

He said that, all across Canada, people tell him they haven't been told about the government's accomplishments.

"I welcome those who desire the truth. For while the light holds forth to burn, the greatest sinners may return."

AIMED AT SQUAD
His words were obviously aimed at the three-member "truth squad" which made its first appearance, headed by Judy LaMarsh, Liberal MP for Niagara Falls.

He accused the Liberals of having followed a "rule of ruin" course in last year's election campaign.

Ottawa Negro Barred

Color Bar Jumps 49th Parallel

OTTAWA (CP)—A Negro housewife has been barred by the U.S.-based headquarters of International Sweet Adelines, Inc., from singing with its Ottawa branch, local officials of the female barbershop singers said here.

A representative from the Tulsa, Okla., headquarters was reported to have said last weekend Mrs. Lona Clowes, a Negro tenor, can no longer sing with the Ottawa group.

Jane Burns, president of the Ottawa Sweet Adelines branch, told reporters the group would be happy to retain Mrs. Clowes but the club must abide by the rules drawn up in the U.S.

Miss Burns, a school teacher, said the Sweet Adelines constitution states members must be "white girls of good moral character."

"I know this color bar goes against the Canadian Bill of Rights and the international group does believe in segregation," she said.

"But I don't see the issue on Christian principles. I see it on the constitution."

Miss Burns said the club would not quit the 13,000-member international organization, but would "just have to wait until the Americans change their civil rights laws."

Executive members Mrs. Beverley Perkins and Mrs. Barbara Cowan, founder of the local group, said they would disassociate themselves from the club.

"I personally cannot go along with this," said Mrs. Perkins. "There is no reason why we should be forced to abide by that regulation up here."

She said Marion Brennan, ethics officer of the organization, visited Ottawa to inform members Mrs. Clowes must leave.

B.C. PROBE EXPLODES

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

A legislative committee probing serious accusations against the highways department erupted in a wild, shouting melee last night over charges of stalling in obtaining an RCMP report.

The hearing became so unruly that at one point it had to be adjourned briefly so order could be restored and frayed tempers cooled off.

TAUNTS

Seconds later the bitter controversy spilled out of the hearing chamber into an adjacent hallway, where members taunted each other and shouted furious exchanges.

The storm drove a new wedge between government and opposition members of the 13-man committee.

It came when opposition members asked Chairman Irvine Corbett (SC Yale) what had been done about a committee resolution passed on Tuesday morning.

RCMP REPORT

The resolution asked consent of the legislature for release of an RCMP report on a highway project to members of the committee, provided they read and discussed it in private.

Opposition dissatisfaction with the speed at which the resolution was being processed became apparent when the committee started its sitting at 7:30 last night.

Randolph Harding (NDP-Kaslo-Slocan) pointed out to Mr. Corbett he was to have presented the resolution for legislative approval.

'WASN'T DONE'

"It wasn't done yesterday and it wasn't done today and you should give a reason," he said.

"There was no date set for the chairman to act on it," Mr. Corbett replied.

"There's been too much stalling in this matter already," Mr. Harding charged.

Up to the time the House rose at 6 p.m. yesterday the resolution had still not been presented.

INSTRUCTED

Mr. Strachan said the chairman had been instructed to present the resolution and he wanted to know why this hadn't been done.

"I've made a report . . ." Mr. Corbett started to reply.

"To what?" stormed Mr. Strachan.

"I want to know why you have not done anything about it in two days."

When a government member of the committee said it was a "procedural problem," Liberal Leader Ray Perrault scoffed.

'NOT AT ALL'

"Oh, it's not a procedural problem at all," he said.

"I am awaiting instructions," pleaded the chairman.

"You don't need any instructions," replied Mr. Strachan.

"I'm asking again, when are you going to present this resolution?" asked Mr. Harding.

"You are trying to . . ." Mr. Strachan started to say, waving his finger at the chairman.

Highway Contractor

By DON MATHESON

Engineer E. C. Webster, director of B.C. highways construction, said Wednesday he could find nothing out of order in a controversial highways contract.

He was testifying before the legislative hearing into highway department operations.

Mr. Webster told the committee he himself had changed the figures on one set of estimates because he had "personal knowledge" of the situation.

EXPLAINED

An apparent discrepancy of $100,000 in payments was explained by deliberately "conservative estimating" in early months of the project, he said.

Later, when the engineers in charge had time, they went back over the amount of material actually moved and there was a "pick-up" of the low estimates.

'RUMORS'

Mr. Webster also admitted that there had been "rumors" about Project 819, which affidavits before the committee have charged received padded payments, throughout its progress.

The project was for 12 miles of Trans-Canada highway near Revelstoke, a joint federal-provincial undertaking.

Mr. Campbell told reporters Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense."

He said he had never warned Mr. Holzworth, a Montana contractor of such a threat.

Mr. Campbell told reporters Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense."

He said Mr. Campbell also told him of a telephone call from Mr. Campbell. A person, unidentified, had told her "we didn't get the job done but we're going to do it."

"It sounded like a threat," said Mr. Holzworth. "But I was not worried about it."

ANOTHER PERSON
Mr. Holzworth said Mr. Campbell had warned him another person had said Holzworth would not appear before the committee.

He said Mr. Campbell also told him of a telephone call from Mr. Campbell. A person, unidentified, had told her "we didn't get the job done but we're going to do it."

"It sounded like a threat," said Mr. Holzworth. "But I was not worried about it."

ANYTHING WRONG?
"Did you find anything out of order . . . anything wrong with the performance of the work?" asked committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

"No," federal authorities concurred with his classification.

Mr. Webster replied. Allegations of padding in the affidavits claimed one month's payments were $100,000 higher than the preceding and following ones.

NOT ENOUGH!
The allegations were, Mr. McKenzie said, that there wasn't sufficient machinery of a large enough payroll, to do that amount of work in a month.

But Mr. Webster explained that engineers on the job had a standard practice of under-estimating payments for early work.

RE-ESTIMATE
By the time the controversial payment No. 4 came along, the "resident engineer" would have his work laid out far enough ahead to permit him to make a rough re-estimation of quantities actually removed.

Also at that time there had been "tight money" and "as a general policy the department felt it should pay up contractors as far as it could," he said.

CLOSER

The larger payment was made on a "partial re-estimate" of the work that allowed the engineer to come closer to what work had actually been done, Mr. Webster testified.

On Estimate No. 5, two copies were entered as exhibits.

Mr. Webster said the engineer had been "conservative in this respect also," and he had personal knowledge of the situation, having inspected the project earlier.

He said he phoned the regional engineer and had him in.

Witness' Life Menaced?

Dick Holzworth, key witness in the highways probe, said Wednesday he had been warned his life is in danger.

The warning, he said, came from Harvey Campbell, a B.C. contractor. He said Mr. Campbell told him "I thought you were supposed to be eliminated."

Mr. Campbell told reporters Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense."

Victoria Coat-of-Arms in Rightful Place

South Peace River, who gave Dawson Creek coat of arms, fourth from left. Victoria discovered about a year ago it didn't have coat-of-arms, started work immediately and recently got approval for design from Royal College of Heralds.—(Bud Kinsman)

John D Finds a Hall

For the first time in its history, the Bay Street Armory is to be used for a political rally.

Victoria Progressive Conservative candidate Eric Charman said last night he has completed arrangements for rental of the huge armory for a John Diefenbaker rally Monday, March 25.

Between 3,000 and 3,500 seats will be moved into the armory—believed never before to have been used for a political meeting—and there will be plenty of standing room, he said.

Armory—March 25

There will even be a band to entertain the crowd from 6:30 p.m. when the doors open until the rally starts at 8 p.m.

"This probably will be the greatest meeting we have ever had in town. We'll pack it to the gills," said the Tory candidate.

It was not immediately

known if the other two political parties' whose national leaders will be in Victoria the same week, will also try to rent the armory, but there was considerable behind-the-scenes jockeying earlier in an effort to get the best places available.

Securing the armory for the launching of Prime Minister

Diefenbaker's campaigning in B.C. was considered a major achievement for the 31-year-old Tory candidate, who in 1957 opened Memorial Arena for the first time to a political meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker's campaign caught fire in the Arena rally and set the pace for his election victory.

"The prime minister is drawing the largest crowds in Canadian political history, and we want to be ready for him when he comes to Victoria," Mr. Charman said.

Sixteen More Units

Kiwanis Villa Addition Ready for Early Start

Directors of the Victoria Kiwanis Club gave the green light last night to construction of a $400,000 16-unit addition to the club's Kiwanis Villa for single elderly persons.

Dr. Alan McGill, club president, said work on the project will begin as soon as architects' plans are completed and contracts let. The club hopes to have the addition built in time for the annual Kiwanis fund-raising blitz in the first week of December, he said.

Directors of the Kiwanis Village Society, in asking club directors to approve the project, said the addition will enable the villa to operate economically.

In the seven months ended Jan. 31 the villa lost $3,857—about $50 a month. The society said labor costs, which could not easily be reduced, are half the operating costs but the same staff could take care of 16 more units which would bring in more revenue.

The society plans to borrow $31,000 to finance construction, with the rest being financed by a $19,000 B.C. government grant and $10,000 from the Kiwanis Club centennial coin project.

The villa now houses 50 tenants.

In addition to the 16 additional units, the addition is to include a sun lounge and wash-room.

NOT INCLUDED

Ultimate plans for the villa include construction of a dining room, permanent kitchen and service rooms. These are not included in the proposed addition.

Society forecasts were that, if the addition went through, the villa would show revenues of $38,756 and expenses of $38,273 in the year ending June 30, 1964. Units rent for $75 a month.

Curtis Still Favors Chinese Fireworks

Victoria will probably continue to press for revision of the provincial fireworks regulations to allow the Chinese community to celebrate its New Year, Ald. Austin Curtis indicated yesterday.

He was commenting on notification received at city hall from the provincial government it was too late to consider changing the regulations at the current session.

The letter suggested city council to use firecrackers and to my mind repeat its request in a few months so the matter could be

Chamber Pleased

Industrial Area Hailed in Duncan

DUNCAN—Duncan's decision to take any steps needed to plan a light industrial area on Indian land south of Trunk Road was hailed by Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce officials Wednesday.

Chamber directors said plans to meet the Indian band council to discuss the matter should be dropped, as such a meeting might confuse the issue.

Referring to a letter recently sent to city council, Will Dobson said "The council might as well be aware of the chamber's interest in the development."

He said there is no reason "for apologizing for the enthusiasm displayed by the chamber."

Directors set a tentative date of April 25 for this year's annual local chamber banquet and installation of the new president and directors.

Chairman of the special organizing committee, Cliff Pascoe, suggested a banquet followed by a dance could foster a larger turnout.

Director Bert Dodd said it was an excellent idea which would provide a get-together opportunity after the banquet. Bert Gray said a prominent speaker would be more fitting for a chamber affair.

Bingo Plans Made

NANAIMO—Kinsmen voted a donation of $25 to the mental health building fund and $25 to aid the Nanaimo Basketball Association at their Tuesday night meeting.

Plans were also discussed for the giant bingo in the civic arena April 24 as a fund-raising project for Kinsmen charities. Neil MacLean is chairman of the bingo committee.

SECOND STAGE

Last year the greater part of the money raised at the giant bingo went toward the swimming pool fund, and it is to be expected some of the money raised this year will go toward the second stage of the swimming pool.

The first stage, a completed fenced-in open-air pool, is expected to be in operation by summer. Ken Eccles, Peter Kelly, Neville Stannard and Terry L'Ami were initiated and Terry L'Ami was named Kinsmen representative on the Nanaimo Water Safety Association.

Corpse Found

PORT ALBERT—A decomposed corpse was found Tuesday lodged under a large which had been towed from the Sarnia River to the assembly wharf, a distance of half a mile.

The body has not yet been identified, nor is it known where it became lodged under the barge. RCMP are checking fingerprints.

Seaman L. C. Tillet, 40, disappeared from the British ship Crystal Gem which took on cargo in December, 1962.

FOUR DELEGATES

President Ed Good, Mr. Dobson, Mr. Hurley and Mr. Pascoe will attend the annual convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island at Courtenay April 4 and 5.

Tourism Works Minister Ewart advised the chamber in a letter his department is giving careful consideration to a suitable site at which the new courthouse will be built.

WHETHER OR NOT

"The provision of RCMP quarters is primarily a federal responsibility, and whether or not RCMP quarters will be included in the new building is a matter on which our attorney-general's department advises," he said in the letter.

Only 157 Patients Still in Colquitz

Only 157 patients out of 300 once there still remain in Colquitz mental hospital, Health Minister Martin said yesterday.

Revising earlier estimates, but asking "not to be pinned down to a date," he said the government had "high hopes of trying to close up this 19th-century thing" by the end of the year.

He made the comment in the legislature during estimates debate.

Mr. Martin said the public works department had improved the centre but "it still won't meet the needs... it's still a medieval prison."

"We will be extremely happy to close it up,"

Mayor Says:

Business Should Have Traffic Problem Voice

The downtown business community should have a voice in the decisions taken to solve traffic problems in the heart of Victoria, Mayor R. B. Wilson said Wednesday.

He said a meeting will be held in a few days with representatives of the Downtown Business Association to hear its views on proposals for a limited one-way street plan.

"That interest shown by DIBA is commendable," the mayor said. "I am looking forward to talking over with them the traffic problems facing us in the downtown area."

HAVE'NT ALL ANSWERS

"We don't pretend to have all the answers at city hall. And, after all, the merchants and businessmen are an integral part of any downtown traffic pattern."

Earlier, Douglas Abbott, president of Downtown Business Association, said no formal stand was taken on traffic at its meeting March 5.

A spokesman for the association was quoted as saying that it would campaign for retention of two-way traffic on Douglas Street.

NO OPINION

"We have no opinion at present," Mr. Abbott said.

The association at its last meeting was considering Ald. Mooney's proposal to make Government one-way southbound and early northbound traffic only on Douglas.

Since then, after discussions with B.C. Hydro officials, this has been modified so that in its present form Douglas would remain a two-way thoroughfare in the downtown area.

Oyster Plant In Operation

COURTENAY—The newly-completed expansion of an oyster plant at Mud Bay means employment for 22 men and women.

Ref Oyster Co. has added to its original 32-by-16-foot building an extension measuring 33 by 12 feet to provide more room for grading and packing, storage and employers' restrooms. The new plant provides space for an additional 12 shuckers.

An electrically-operated elevator to take oysters from scow to the chutes went into operation this week.

The plant can turn out 200 gallons of oysters a day.

Market Garden 'Hard Gamble'

By KLAUS MUENTER

COWICHAN—Unless you have an excellent piece of land you should not attempt to become a market gardener, said Lawrence Edward Stewart, who works a spread of 44 acres about half-way between Duncan and Chemainus on the Trans-Canada Highway.

He is in the midst of early spring preparations and looks forward to another successful year.

For a decade he has been in business, and his operation is a partnership between he, his 24-year-old son Russell and his wife. Growing every conceivable kind of vegetable, his first love is strawberries and although he favors the good yielding British Sovereign, Mr. Stewart at present is experimenting with a new kind, Puget Sound Beauties.

"They are supposed to be good picking berries," he said. He sells the large majority of his corn and strawberry crop to a wholesaler in Victoria and during the picking season with an additional labor force of 20—mainly Indians—Mr. Stewart sometimes has to work from three a.m. until 10 p.m.

"Especially as a market gardener you have to work hard, and you might as well accept the fact this business is a gamble," he said.

YIELD DOWN

Last year, late spring frost killed half of the strawberry crop on the Stewart farm and brought the yield down to 800 crates of 18 pounds each.

Beside his large market at Victoria, customers come from as far as Tofino and Alberni to buy at his roadside stand at the Red Rooster Cafe.

TWO PURPOSES

Mr. Stewart's trips during the winter season to warmer climates of Hawaii, Florida or California serve two purposes. They are holidays and study tours of different gardening methods at the same time. In Florida, he observed, market gardeners have to spray much more frequently than here.

"Although I don't believe in spraying we have to do a certain amount," he said.

DIFFERENT WAY

Chemainus market gardener J. H. Dobbs, who also runs a dairy farm, has a different way of marketing his harvest. He does not believe in retailing but sells in bulk to five stores at Duncan, one at Chemainus and two at Ladysmith.

He also is in the middle of spring preparations. Mr. Dobbs is particularly proud of his tomatoes, which in the past few years brought enormous yields.

In an area of only 1.32 of an acre he harvested 3,700 pounds of No. 1 tomatoes and some of the plants yielded not less than 155 fruits, and many of the 500 plants had 125. Mr. Dobbs said he never has difficulty marketing his produce, and storekeepers wait for his first crop to be delivered as early as possible.

He is confident he could

make a good living from growing vegetables alone, but he wants to make sure and feels mixed farming is the safest type of agriculture. All three market gardeners in this district have some cattle, but Mr. Dobbs is first with 78 head.

THE 985,000 animals on Vancouver Island farms consume approximately 60,000 tons of feed per year. The figure includes beef and dairy cattle, hogs, turkeys, layers and broilers.

FIRMS NAMED

About 35,000 tons of feed is produced on Vancouver Island by Cowichan Co-Operative Association, B and K Milling Company, both at Duncan, Nanaimo Farmers' Co-Op at Nanaimo, and Scott and Peelen, Ellison Milling and Borden Mercantile, all at Victoria.

Approximately 25,000 tons are shipped to Vancouver Island from the B.C. mainland. Other firms in the feed business with storage facilities on the island are Buckfield, Clark and Cordick and Standard Feed.

Welfare Has Few 'Chiselers'

Most people who receive social welfare payments are basically honest and "chiseling" is almost non-existent, city welfare administrator William Hooon said Wednesday.

"Anyone we catch chiseling we prosecute," he said. "Last year we had two cases and we have had none so far this year."

"In the whole of British Columbia last year there were less than 70 prosecutions."

"The provincial government has a system of procedures for cross-checking, so by and large there are few cases of people registering in two offices and drawing benefits at both."

"Some social misfits are not reliable and they are often given vouchers for food and accommodation. Some of them spend their days figuring out how they can convert their vouchers to cash and spend the money on liquor."

NANAIMO—Children taking art classes in Nanaimo schools are becoming a recognized part of the tourist trade by having their art designs chosen for signs. One of these adorns the entrance to the Tally-Ho Travelodge.

Now the trade and industry committee of the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce has decided to hold a contest between the school children for a new cover design for an industrial brochure, to be distributed to firms who might locate in this area.

British firms will be particularly welcomed. A joint meeting of the senior and junior chambers to discuss tourist promotion has been arranged for Friday.

PORT ALBERNI—Damage was estimated at $7,000 in a fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fox, 311 Dunbar, late Monday night.

The blaze apparently started near the coal furnace. Contents of the house were heavily damaged.

There was no one at home when the fire broke out. The fire department was called at 11:35 p.m.

NANAIMO—The North Oyster volunteer fire department had a busy day Sunday pouring concrete for the floor of the firehall on the Yellow Point road. The crew started at 9 a.m. and worked steadily until 5 p.m. It is hoped that the firehall, almost completely built by volunteer labor under the guidance of Harold Ashdown, will be completed by summer.

NANAIMO—The Nanaimo art group, with an additional 80 new members, are already planning exhibitions of their work. Color classes in addition to the black and white classes will be held at Beban House after the high school classes terminate.

No Time to Eat

Pint-Sized Politician Invades Island

By JACK FRY
Colonist Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Timing of New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas' arrival on Vancouver Island yesterday was so critical 200 persons were halfway through their luncheon when the guest of honor walked into the CCF hall in Nanaimo.

T. C. DOUGLAS

... "marvellous"

The throng of NDP supporters rose in their places to give their leader a rousing round of applause, then sat down again to finish their meal.

Mr. Douglas didn't have time to eat. He was about to sink a fork into his portion of baked ham when he was called upon to give a speech.

The rush apparently was caused by the fact many had to get back to work. As it was, Mr. Douglas' 40-minute speech lasted until 1:10 p.m.

NOT A CHANCE

"I haven't had a chance to eat," said the pint-sized NDP leader, as he pulled back his chair at the head table and stood up on it.

"The Douglases will do almost anything for a live meal including coming to Nanaimo, where they didn't get it," he continued.

Mr. Douglas said he has heard "marvellous reports" of the "fine campaign" the NDP is putting on in Esquimalt-Saanich but did not mention the NDP campaign in Victoria.

Esquimalt-Saanich candidate John Windsor was at the lun-

U.S. Denies Shelling Reds

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet charge and described it as the government charged Wednesday that United States Navy gunners lobbed four dummy shells last Friday at one of the dozens of Russian trawlers operating between the Grand Banks of Newfoundland and the Caribbean, endangering the vessel and its crew.

In Washington, the state department denied the Soviet charge "without foundation."

Two American cruisers and a destroyer fired on the Soviet refrigerator ship, the Olenok, 500 ft. from the high seas 70 miles east of Norfolk, Va., in an "act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences," a protest note to Washington declared.

DEMAND CITED

The note demanded punishment of the persons responsible and assurance that the purported incident won't happen again.

A statement issued by the state department after a day-long investigation said there was naval firing practice within the area east of Norfolk but that the nearest surface ship was 12 miles away.

WITHOUT FOUNDATION

The U.S. statement said:

"A thorough investigation has positively established that the Soviet protest of an alleged firing of a U.S. naval vessel on a Soviet trawler 70 miles east of Norfolk on March 8 is without foundation."

A spokesman for U.S. Atlantic fleet headquarters had said earlier that no U.S. cruisers were operating in the area.

Grit Squad Hears

'Truth Hurts' John D Foes

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—With a Liberal "truth squad" listening intently, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday night his Conservative government is getting the voters' support because it gives them "the whole truth."

In a vigorous speech to a crowd of 1,100, Mr. Diefenbaker rolled off reams of statistics on economic growth and on government measures to help the Atlantic area.

"Give 'em hell, John," shouted a man in the filled-to-capacity high school auditorium.

"I never do," the prime minister shot back with a smile.

"I simply tell the truth and it sounds that way to the Grits."

He said that, all across Canada, people tell him they haven't been told about the government's accomplishments.

"I welcome those who desire the truth. For while the light holds forth to burn, the greatest sinners may return."

Highway Contractor

All in Order —Engineer

By DON MATHESON

Engineer E. C. Webster, director of B.C. highways construction, said Wednesday he could find nothing out of order in a controversial highways contract.

He was testifying before the legislative hearing into highways department operations.

Mr. Webster told the committee he himself had changed the figures on one set of estimates because he had "personal knowledge" of the situation.

EXPLAINED

An apparent discrepancy of $100,000 in payments was explained by deliberately "conservative estimating" in early months of the project, he said.

Later, when the engineers in charge had time, they went back over the amount of material actually moved and there was a "pickup" of the low estimates.

HUMORS

Mr. Webster also admitted that there had been "rumors" about Project 819, which affidavits before the committee have charged received padded payments, throughout its progress.

The project was for 12 miles of Trans-Canada highway near Revelstoke, a joint federal-provincial undertaking.

CRITICIZED

"During the course of this project," he said, picking his words carefully, "the job was subject to quite a bit of criticism, rumors of favors being granted to contractors, and payments for work not performed."

A committee of federal and provincial highways officials that just "gave" checked the job in May, 1958, he said.

ANYTHING WRONG?

"Did you find anything out of order... anything wrong with the performance of the work?" asked committee counsel Lloyd McKenzie.

"No," federal authorities concurred with our classification.

Mr. Webster replied: "Allegations of padding in the affidavits claimed one month's payments were $100,000 higher than the preceding and following ones."

NOT ENOUGH?

The allegations were, Mr. McKenzie said, that there wasn't sufficient machinery or a large enough payroll to do that amount of work in a month.

But Mr. Webster explained that engineers on the job had a standard practice of underestimating payments for early work.

RE-ESTIMATE

By the time the controversial payment No. 4 came along, the "resident engineer" would have his work laid out far enough ahead to permit him to make a rough re-estimation of quantities actually removed.

Also at that time there had been "tight money" and "as a general policy the department felt it should pay up contractors as far as it could," he said.

CLOSER

The larger payment was made on a "partial re-measurement" of the work that allowed the engineer to come closer to what work had actually been done, Mr. Webster testified.

On Estimate No. 5, two copies were entered as exhibits.

Mr. Webster said the engineer had been "conservative in this respect also," and he had personal knowledge of the situation, having inspected the project earlier.

He said he phoned the regional engineer and had him in-

Witness' Life Menaced?

Dick Holzworth, key witness in the highways probe, said Wednesday he had been warned his life is in danger.

The warning, he said, came from Harvey Campbell, a B.C. contractor. He said Mr. Campbell told him "I thought you were supposed to be eliminated."

Mr. Campbell told reporters Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense." He said he had never warned Mr. Holzworth, a Montana contractor, of such a threat.

ANOTHER PERSON

Mr. Holzworth said Mr. Campbell had warned him another person had said Holzworth would not appear before the committee.

He said Mr. Campbell also told him of a telephone call from Mrs. Campbell. A person, unidentified, had told her "we didn't get the job done but we're going to do it."

"It sounded like a threat," said Mr. Holzworth. "But I was not worried about it."

Ottawa Negro Barred

Color Bar Jumps 49th Parallel

OTTAWA (CP)—A Negro housewife has been barred by the U.S.-based headquarters of International Sweet Adelines, Inc., from singing with its Ottawa branch, local officials of the female barbershop singers said here.

A representative from the Tulsa, Okla., headquarters was reported to have said last weekend Mrs. Lana Clowes, a Negro tenor, can no longer sing with the Ottawa group.

Jane Burns, president of the Ottawa Sweet Adelines branch, told reporters the group would be happy to retain Mrs. Clowes but the club must abide by the rules drawn up in the U.S.

Miss Burns, a school teacher, said the Sweet Adelines constitution states members must be "white girls of good moral character."

"I know this color bar goes against the Canadian Bill of Rights" and the international group does believe in segregation," she said.

"But I don't see the issue on Christian principles. I see it on the constitution."

Miss Burns said the club would not quit the 13,000-member international organization, but would "just have to wait until the Americans change their civil rights laws."

Executive members Mrs. Beverley Perkins and Mrs. Barbara Cowan, founder of the local group, said they would dissociate themselves from the club.

"I personally cannot go along with this," said Mrs. Perkins. "There is no reason why we should be forced to abide by that regulation up here."

She said Marion Brennan, ethics officer of the organization, visited Ottawa to inform members Mrs. Clowes must leave.

"She laid it on the line,"
